DEALERS OFF ON ANNUAL HI JINKS

Automobile Men's Motorcade Starts For Picnic At Mountain Resort

A procession of twenty cars left today at 12:30 o'clock for Forest Home, a resort in the San Bernardino mountains, bearing approximately fifty members of the Glendale Automobile Dealers' association on their third annual "Hi Jinks." The members all wore white hats.

The procession left from Harvard street between Central avenue and Orange street, headed by the car bearing President Lyman P. Clark of the association and a representative of The Glendale Evening News.

The cars were decorated with banners bearing the insignia:

GLENDALE AUTOMOBILE DEALERS' ASSOCIATION THIRD ANNUAL HI JINKS

Last year likewise the association held its Hi Jinks at Forest Home, where such a royal time was enjoyed, according to the members, that this year it was unanimously voted to go to the same place. As many know, Forest Home is a mountain resort above Redlands, located at an altitude of 6000 feet above sea level. It is celebrated for its trout fishing and other sports. The year before last the Hi Jinks was held at Arrowhead lake.

The party will arrive at Forest Home about 4 o'clock, and at 6 o'clock a big banquet will be served, "with all the fixin's." Talks and games will then be enjoyed, followed by a refreshing sleep at high altitude.

Sport Program

Tomorrow morning some members of the association will pursue the elusive trout, while others will engage in athletic events, in competition for prizes which were especially purchased by M. B. Towman, secretary of the club.

Early in the afternoon the return trip will be made, bringing the party back to Glendale by 6 o'clock. A full and exclusive account of the program of festivities at Forest Home will be found in tomorrow's issue of The Glendale Evening News.

Accused Youths Deny Guilt Of Murder, Kidnaping Charges In Court

CHICAGO, June 11.—Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, confessed slayers of 13-year-old Robert Franks, will go to trial on charges of murder and kidnaping for ransom on August 4 next.

Arraigned this morning before Chief Justice Caverly of the criminal court, the youths pleaded not guilty and heard the date of their trial set.

The largest crowd ever jammed into the criminal court witnessed the arraignment.

Dignified and serious, the two sons of the millionaires walked calmly into a stilled courtroom to face a curious crowd that had only a few moments before torn the doors to the courtroom from their hinges.

Plead Not Guilty

Instead of being handcuffed to deputies, as is customary with prisoners charged with murder, the two boys were looped to their guards by means of "come-ons"—thongs about their wrists held by their guards.

Their eyes straight to the front, they walked calmly to the judge's bench, where they listened unflinchingly to the discussion among attorneys of the charges, the possible death penalty and other legalities. Both ignored the crowd.

Asked to plead to the charges, the two youths, in strong, clear voices, easily audible throughout the courtroom, said they were not guilty.

WEST WANTS PLACE ON TICKET

Ban Conservative Eastern Candidate as Running Mate for Coolidge

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
For International News Service.

CLEVELAND, June 11. — A dramatic, eleventh hour effort to swing the Republican national convention entirely away from any vice-presidential candidate picked up by the conservative eastern crowd of administration supporters, was launched full tilt in Cleveland this morning just before the convention met for its second day session to adopt the platform.

It was engineered by an influential group of delegates from Iowa, Minnesota, Kansas and the Dakoats, who served notice on the easterners they do not want Herbert Hoover or James G. Harbord, but rather they demand some one of the stripe of Judge William S. Kenyon or Senator William E. Borah, who is closer to the needs of the agricultural west.

Deny Insurgency

The northwestern delegates met in the Hotel Winton this morning in a general session. They denied they were insurgents and pointed out that some of the Wisconsin followers of Robert M. LaFollette were invited to attend. They are merely going to fight for a western man for the good of the party, they said.

State Senator Charles T. Cessna, one of the delegates at large from Iowa, was the moving spirit in the gathering. All the delegates who attended the Winton session took great pains to emphasize this was "no bolt" but merely a group gathering to try to get a western agricultural bal-

REPUBLICANS SPLIT OVER COOLIDGE PROGRAM

Leaders Adjourn Gathering In Order to Secure President's Advice

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
For International News Service.

CLEVELAND, June 11.—The Republican national convention divided this afternoon into what amounted to two rival camps over the selection of a running mate for President Coolidge.

While western delegates held a meeting in the Hotel Winton to "demand" the nomination of a vice-president who appeals to the agricultural west, a little group of eastern administration leaders held another session in the Hotel Cleveland to try to find some way out of the situation which has been created by western insistence upon a "progressive candidate."

In the meeting at the Cleveland hotel, were four members of the president's cabinet—Secretary Weeks, Secretary Mellon, Postmaster-General New and Secretary Wilbur and C. Bascom Slemp, secretary to President Coolidge, Senator Reed of Pennsylvania and others.

See a Compromise

In the Winton meeting were many western delegates hailing from Iowa, Nebraska, the Dakotas and Minnesota.

As a result of western opposition, administration leaders admitted it looked impossible to nominate Herbert Hoover, and suggestions were afloat that it might be possible to effect a compromise upon General James G. Harbord or James Good of Iowa, who for sixteen years was in Congress, and lately manager of the Coolidge campaign in the west..

The session in the Hotel Cleveland lasted several hours. It broke up just about the time the westerners were going into conference at the Winton.. Those in the Cleveland meeting said "it looks like Hoover is done." Administration leaders apparently were hopeful of effecting a compromise on either Harbord or Good and at once set out to canvass western sentiment toward them..

Coolidge Silent

No success attended efforts up to 3:30 p. m. to get an expression of opinion out of President Coolidge at Washington

The placid quietude of the Republican national convention was rudely interrupted this afternoon by a fight over the platform that had been dictated by the Coolidge managers.

In addition to the warfare against it to be conducted by the Wisconsin group of insurgents, Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana, served notice today that he would lead a fight against the world court plank from the floor of the convention.

Second Peace War

This plank pledges the party to adherence to the Harding-Hughes-Coolidge plan of adhering to the permanent court of international justice, organized under the League of Nations.

Faced with this fight, and faced also with the resentment of delegates from agricultural states over the efforts of eastern conservatives to nominate a vice-presidential candidate of "conservative" stripe, the leaders recessed the convention until 8 o'clock tonight. This will afford a breathing space for the leaders to get their hearings, it will give Beveridge time to prepare his case against the world court plank, and it is also hoped that some advice can be secured from President Coolidge by tonight.

Appeal to Coolidge

Administration leaders on the ground here appealed to President Coolidge this afternoon for some

ADOPT FINAL PLANKS IN PLATFORM

G.O.P.Leaders Will Present Finished Document to Convention

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
For International News Service.

CLEVELAND, June 11.—The Republican platform, on which President Coolidge will go to the polls in November, was completed early today by a "planning committee" of administration leaders.

Laboring all night long, fifteen men drafted the platform, closely following the recommendations of President Coolidge. The document, to be confirmed first by the full committee on resolutions, probably will be presented to the convention for ratification about 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Leading Issues

The dominant issues were federal economy—reference to the saving of billions of dollars by the Republican administration—and endorsement of the Harding-

WARNS REPUBLICANS TO DRIVE OUT INSURGENTS

Election of Congress Republican Both in Name and Principle Urged by Mondell in G. O. P. Convention Address

CLEVELAND, June 11.—Admonition to Republicans to retire from Congress the insurgents who have played havoc with administration policies and to elect in November a Congress that is Republican in "principle as well as in name," opened the Republican national convention meeting in its second session here today.

It was delivered with great earnestness by Frank W. Mondell, of Wyoming, permanent chairman of the convention, who took up the gavel laid down by Representative Theodore Burton, of Ohio, the convention keynoter. His short speech simply emphasized Burton's warning against any third party tendency within the Republican party, and ascribed whatever failures have met the administration program in Washington to the insurgent members of the party.

"Every serious fault of recent legislation and every failure to complete and round out a satisfactory legislative program," Mondell said, "could and would have been avoided had there been dependable Republican majorities in Congress. The one certain and assured remedy for such a condition is the election of a Congress, Republican by a goodly majority, both in name and principle."

Mondell briefly and glowingly reviewed the Republican accomplishments under Harding and Coolidge, and coupled with it a short, savage criticism of the Democrats.

"If the American people were prepared to forget," he said, "the wholly indefensible record of the Democratic party in earlier days, they could not overlook the fact that the most recent record of the Democratic party is one devoid of a single redeeming feature; of scandalous mismanagement, of unwise and indefensible policy while in control, and utter lack of definite principle or policy, save that of muckraking and obstruction.

Final arrangements are nearing completion for the June fiesta, to be held Friday night, June 13, on the tennis courts of the Harvard High school, under the auspices of the Glendale Art association.

The refreshment booths will be open and ready to dispense "pedigreed" hot dogs, hot coffee, ice cream and cake as early as 7 o'clock.

At 8 o'clock the entertainment and dancing will begin at the close of a musical program.

"Feeding the dragon" promises hilarious sport for all ages. The mysterious June bug will be the surprise of the evening. This "animal" is to be held in leash in the airdome until 10 o'clock, when it will make its novel appearance, escorted by its subjects.

Mrs. Roy A. Ballagh, president of the association, is in charge

DEATHS – FUNERALS

MRS. MYRA C. K. SHUEY

Countless Glendale friends of Mrs. Myra C. K. Shuey, who died Sunday at her home in Los Angeles, attended the funeral services this afternoon in the Little Church of the Flowers in Forest Lawn Memorial park. The Women's Relief Corps was in charge and a member of the corps has written the following obituary:

"Like 'one who wraps the drapery of his couch about him and lies down to pleasant dreams', so passed into the great beyond the spirit of Mrs. Myra C. Kincaid Shuey, early Sunday morning at her home in Los Angeles.

"With the passing of this noble woman, who possessed so many of those splendid virtues there assembled at the Church of the Flowers in Forest Lawn Memorial park, this afternoon, many loyal and true friends to pay a fitting tribute to her life and womanly virtues.

"Mrs. Shuey was born in Pennsylvania 79 years ago, the daughter of an eminent jurist of that state. Especially endowed with superior intellectual ability she received all of those advantages that a home life of culture and refinement afforded as well as superior school and academic opportunities supplied.

"Myra C. Kincaid developed into splendid womanhood and portrayed those many beautiful virtues all through a long and useful life. After her marriage Mrs. Shuey came to California over thirty years ago. Having become known in the east as a most successful teacher in the public schools Mrs. Shuey was urged to resume her work here in the California schools and it afforded her a source of happiness as her love for the youth was proverbial.

"Aside from her duties in the schools in Porterville and other localities in California, Mrs. Shuey found time and opportunity to devote to journalistic work, in which she wielded a forceful as well as graceful pen. Among her many memories and mementoes which she cherished were her many letters from Ella Wheeler Wilcox, who was an esteemed friend and dearly beloved companion of Mrs. Shuey.

"As a member of the Southern California Woman's Press club Mrs. Shuey always enjoyed a keen and active interest while residing in Porterville. She assisted in the institution of Palm Leaf chapter, Order of Eastern Star of that city, of which chapter she became worthy matron in 1903.

"About fifteen years ago Mrs. Shuey came to Glendale and with her husband, the late J. E. Shuey, resided on Columbus avenue, near Park avenue. She affiliated with the N. P. Banks, Woman's Relief Corps and served that organization for several years as secretary.

"Her loyalty and patriotism to country and flag were manifested in the many odes and poems she contributed to the glory and beauty of her country's emblem.

"As past chief of the Pythian Sisters she assisted in the institution of La Hallah temple, Glendale. She gave the euphonious name La Hallah to this temple.

"Following the passing of Mr. Shuey, shortly after coming to Glendale, Mrs. Shuey removed to Los Angeles. Her frequent visits to her numerous friends here were always greeted with pleasure and happiness.

"Mrs. Shuey is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Maybelle Gilstrap, wife of W. F. Gilstrap, editor in Eugene, Oregon, who was with her mother when the summons came. Other relatives who mourn her passing are C. Edward Shuey, stepson; a brother, James A. Shuey and family of Porterville; a sister, Mrs. Roswell Nelson and family of Peabody, Kan.; a sister, Mrs. Margaret Olivies of Los Angeles, and daughters; and a sister-in-law, wife of the late Eugene Kincaid of Los Angeles, and children.

MRS. MAUDE S. GROVE

Mrs. Maude S. Grove died last night, Tuesday, June 10, 1924, at her home, 5248 Townsend avenue, Eagle Rock, at the age of 41 years. She was a native of Sidney, Ohio, and had resided in California for five years.

She leaves her husband, Elmer S. Grove; two sons, Olin C. and Francis K. Grove; a daughter, Miss Dorothy Grove; a mother, Mary A. Conklin of Los Angeles, and a sister, Mrs. W. H. Phillips of Redlands.

Funeral services are to be held at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon, June 12, in the Little Church of the Flowers in Forest Lawn Memorial park. Kiefer & Eyerick, directors.

FLIGHT OFFICER IS RADIO EXPERT OF MUSIC FIRM

Lieut. B. M. Spencer, Plane Builder and Aviator, Heads Department

The Salmacia brothers, proprietors of the Glendale Music company at 109 North Brand boulevard, where the big sale is now on, believe in employing experts to head their various departments and that is why Reserve Lieutenant B. M. Spencer of the U. S. flying corps is in charge of their radio department.

Not only is Lieutenant Spencer a pioneer aviator who has built and flown planes since 1912 and was an instructor at Rockwell and McCook fields during the late war, but he had a Massachusetts operator's license in 1910 and later operated KFU, a 20-watt broadcasting station at Gridley, near San Francisco.

Lieutenant Spencer is negotiating with the chief of the air service for the use of an army plane in which he will pilot Charles M. "Rainmaker" Hatfield, also employed by the Glendale Music company, on a series of high alttude flights to test meteorological conditions in the upper air.

Flies at 11,000 Feet

On Sunday Lieutenant Spencer flew over the Glendale territory at an altitude of 11,000 feet, in an army plane from Clover Field, Santa Monica. He says that from this altitude the entire San Fernando valley and large portions of the Pacific ocean and high Sierras are visible and present one of the most sublime views in the world.

In the four months that Lieutenant Spencer has been with the Glendale Music company, the Salmacia brothers report, their radio business has doubled and trebled, becoming the largest distributing point for high class radio instruments in southern California, outside of Los Angeles.

The Salmacia brothers report that their great sale now in progress is appealing strongly to the public of Glendale and surrounding points, and that scores of buyers are daily taking advantage of the opportunity to save $90 on every purchase of a piano.

Tuesday Afternoon Club's Year Books To Boost Glendale

The beauty of the Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse is going to be known far and wide, following the biennial convention, for all the foreign delegates, as well as many delegates from various states, have been presented with Tuesday Afternoon club year books.

Clubwomen are always desirous of receiving attractive year books, and, fortunately, the Tuesday Afternoon club had on hand several hundred extra copies of their attractive year book.

Compliments are being heard on every hand at the convention on the year books from Glendale.

PUBLICITY BOOK IS GIFT TO CLUB

Miss Eva Daniels Lauds News In Presenting Report Of Year's Work

The Glendale Evening News shared yesterday in the happiness of Miss Eva Daniels, publicity chairman of the Tuesday Afternoon club, who, in closing her annual report before the club gathering, presented to the club her wonderful book on publicity, which was one of the features during the convention of the Los Angeles district in Glendale.

Clippings from The Glendale Evening News are seen in profusion in Miss Daniels' splendid book, which is indicative of her efficiency as publicity chairman.

The Glendale Evening News' club editor has always found it a pleasure to be associated with Miss Daniels in her capacities in various Glendale organizations, and has found in her a loyal supporter.

In her report given yesterday she took occasion to express sincere appreciation to The Glendale Evening News.

A rising vote of thanks was accorded her by the club for her faithful and successful service during the year.

Whole forests of bamboo are being cut down to supply the need of phonograph needles every year.

MEMBERS SALUTE CLUB PRESIDENT IN LOYAL TOAST

Mrs. Daniel Campbell Hears Tributes at Luncheon Of Executives

"Here's to Margaret Campbell, she's a dear,
Here's to Margaret Campbell, she's a dear,
No one 'ere can take her place,
She has led us such a race,
She's a president without a peer
Margaret dear, Margaret dear."

Such was the toast that greeted Mrs. Daniel Campbell yesterday noon, when she was surrounded at the luncheon table at the Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse with all members of the club who have served on the executive board during her presidency in 1922, 1923 and 1924.

The luncheon followed the morning board meeting and was featured by a happy gathering of women, who have become loyal friends during their association in club activity.

Gift From Members

As token of love from her board members a beautiful cloisonne vase was presented to Mrs. Campbell by Mrs. Barton. Then each person present received a tiny package containing a little oriental monkey figure cut from glass and suspended on either a yellow or green cord.

Voicing the sentiment of all present was the response from Mrs. Campbell, who spoke in appreciation of the loyalty of those who had served with her and of the happy friendships begun.

During the hour of informality later, it was suggested that the women present form the G. M. club, pledging themselves to meet for luncheon once each year. Later it was suggested that a summer luncheon be held at the home of Mrs. John Robert White.

Seated about the luncheon table, bright with yellow flowers, and greenery, expressive of the club colors, were Mesdames Daniel Campbell, A. H. Montgomery, C. W. Houston, William Hunter, M. E. Plasterer, H. E. Bartlett, Frank Ayars, A. A. Barton, E. W. W. Hayward, Lillian Dow, B. O. Holbrook, E. B. Sutton, John Dunn, J. T. Crampton, John Rob-

SEES MORE THAN 500 SPECIES OF HUMMING BIRDS

Capable of Making Speed Of 80 Miles An Hour, Scientists Find

Glendale residents who have noticed little humming birds flitting about among the bright early summer flowers and the green foliage will be interested in a study of "The Humming Bird," written for The Glendale Evening News by Alfred Cookman, M. S., of 638 North Louise street, head of the department of biology in the Los Angeles Polytechnic High school.

Mr. Cookman, who also is president of the Los Angeles California Nature club and editor of "The Water Ouzel," the journal of the club, titles his sketch of the humming bird "A Glittering Fragment of the Rainbow."

By ALFRED COOKMAN, M. S.
Written for The Evening News.

Of all the numerous groups into which birds are divided there is none other so numerous in species, so varied in form, so brilliant in plumage and so different from all others in their mode of life as the humming bird. Inhabitants exclusively of the temperate and tropical portions of America they constitute the most charming element in the varied form of bird life of the new world. Nature has placed them among the order of birds but among the tiniest of the race. She has loaded them with gifts of which she has given other birds, so to speak, only a share. Agility, rapidity, nimbleness, grace and rich attire, all belong to this little favorite.

This description is somewhat inaccurate and slightly overdrawn scientifically, for humming birds do not possess the power of song equal to the "high-toned artist," the hermit thrush, or the "obligato soloist," the red-eyed vireo, but the humming birds sing in their own way and convey the message endowed by their tribes just the same.

It is no exaggeration to say that one can detect the emerald, the garnet, the topaz, the ruby and the amethyst in its garb which is seldom soiled by the dust of earth, for leading an aerial life it rarely touches the turf, even for an instant. Flying from blossom to blossom, it sucks the sweet nectar and only inhabits those climates where gorgeously-tinted flowers are unceasingly refreshed by the morning dew.

Most Marked Group

Humming birds are the most marked groups of birds in the world. Five hundred species have been named. Their flight and manner of procuring food is different from all other birds. They are found only in North and South America. The greatest varieties are tropical. The state of California with its 1,000 miles of coast line and with a topography unequaled by any state in the Union; with a climate unparalleled and with climatic zones most varied from Boreal Arctic on the Sierra Nevada mountain summits to semi-tropical Imperial valley, we have the rare privilege of residing in a "golden state" rich in

Employes Visit Building

Personnel of the Glendale branch of the Security Trust and Savings bank in their new banking rooms in the Glendale Security building which will open with a public reception Saturday afternoon and night.

So that they may feel perfectly at home when they act as hosts to the many thousands who are expected to attend the opening and "house-warming" of the Glendale Security building Saturday, the forty employes of the Glendale Security Bank were taken for a tour of inspection of their own yesterday afternoon after banking hours.

R. F. Kitterman, vice-president and manager, who will act as head host Saturday afternoon and evening, was host first to his own force as he took them throughout the beautiful new banking room and then through the building itself from basement to roof! He could not have had a more enthusiastic or inquisitive group with him had he been showing the general public about, than he did yesterday. He was kept busy answering questions from the personnel, the same questions which the latter will be called upon to answer themselves Saturday. All expressed themselves as highly pleased with the new home, so much in fact, that they begrudge the two days remaining to be spent in the present room on the opposite corner.

Earlier in the day, President Joseph F. Sartori of the Security Bank was shown through the building by vice-president Kitterman and he expressed himself as delighted with it. The veteran head of the great bank declared that for sheer beauty of finish and for convenience of arrangement, the new home of the Glendale branch would be difficult to excell. So pleased was he with the final result that he hesitated when asked to offer any suggestions for improvement.

"First of the Ranchos, the Story of Glendale," the souvenir booklet especially prepared for the reception Saturday, went to press last night and will be ready for distribution to all coming to the opening. In expectation of a large crowd an edition of 10,000 of the beautifully illustrated brochures is being printed.

VOTE TO CHANGE MEETING DATES OF WOMEN'S CLUB

Revision of By-Laws Calls For Bi-Monthly Session, Chairmen Report

The Tuesday Afternoon club is to return to the bi-monthly meeting program next club year, it was decided at the club meeting yesterday afternoon.

Vote on this proposed revision of the by-laws making the change back to the bi-monthly plan, was to have been taken at the club meeting last week, but in the confusion of parliamentary procedure it was finally decided to delay action until yesterday.

As a result, with Mrs. Daniel Campbell presiding, and Mrs. A. A. Barton reporting for the re-vision committee, the proposed revisions were again read and were passed without discussion by club members present.

Bi-Monthly Plan Wins

While questionnaires sent out with the recent nominating ballots showed that many of the club members favored the bi-monthly meeting plan, other club members were heartily in favor of a meeting each week. However, advocates of the former meeting plan were victorious.

The other revisions accepted had to do with various adminis-

Producer May Stage Pageant In Glendale

Garnet Holme, producer of the pageant "Ramona" at Hemet, was a visitor in Glendale yesterday, to consider the prospects of directing a pageant here during the coming year.

With Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brewster and R. Ernest Tucker, Mr. Holme visited the natural amphitheatre in the "Green Verdugo Hills" just back of the Oakmont country club.

He declared this bowl to be one of the most perfect natural amphitheatres he has ever seen. He is hoping to locate a smaller one for use in the Glendale pageant.

Daylight Saving for Southland Is Urged

LOS ANGELES, June 11.—The Daylight Savers are busy again. In a letter filed with the City Council, the Commercial board lists numerous business organizations who are desirous of this city being in accord with New York in the matter of getting up with the sun. They would have the clocks set ahead an hour. Opposition on the part of theatres and employes is predicted if the matter is seriously considered.

DIPLOMACY WILL AVERT TROUBLE

There come rumors that Japan is very much incensed over the passage of our immigration bill containing the Japanese exclusion act. It is hard to tell just how much there is to these rumors. Some people are so anxious to cry, "War!"

The Japenese menace, the yellow peril, has long been a bugaboo in the United States. Years ago Captain Richmond Pearson Hobson went about the country lecturing and advocating a strong American navy in order to avert war with Japan—and his reasoning was sound, too. It is to be expected that Japan, crowded as she is, proud of her advancement beyond other peoples of her own race and glorying in her achievements in war and peace, should cast covetous eyes toward the eastern shores of the Pacific, and what an advantage to have a goodly number of loyal subjects entrenched here.

War with Japan or any other nation is the last thing we want, but the United States cannot remain self respecting and let another nation dictate its laws and policies. Japan would not submit to such dictation from China and yet she excludes Chinese, people of her own race, from Japan.

There are reports of hostile demonstrations against Americans in Japan. To offset this, the Japanese people have been and are still being very well treated here. Their children are being educated in our free schools while, at the same time, they are not allowed to forget the Japanese language or to renounce fealty to Japan. Japanese merchants are being patronized by American people to the point of ruin for their American competitors, in some cases.

There is no reason for any trouble between Japan and the United States. If there is trouble it will be because Japan wills it and not because the United States is at fault in framing a policy for the good of her own people. We are sure that the diplomacy of President Coolidge and Secretary Hughes in the note to Japan will be sufficient to allay any ill feeling that may have arisen on the part of Japan.

ABOLISH BILLBOARDS!

A good way to banish the hideous billboards that mar the beauty of public highways and intrude their offensive presence amid the finest examples of nature's handiwork would be to boycott all articles thus advertised. This plan has worked in Hawaii and in certain portions of England, and would work here.

In California particularly, known the world over as one of the fairest spots on God's earth, THE BILLBOARD IS OFFENSIVE IN THE EXTREME AND MUST GO. But, before using strong-arm methods, all merchants and manufacturers who employ this advertising medium should be approached along lines calculated to appeal to their sense of fair play.

The church would be a potent force in ridding California of billboards. Surely any sincere Christian would respond to the request of his pastor to abate such a nuisance, when he knew that the request was backed by the whole congregation. The school likewise would provide a sterling lecture platform for the prosecution of this campaign.

PLAN WISELY FOR TOMORROW

Two things at least no one ever lives to regret. One is getting a little more schooling while there is still a chance, and the other is buying a little piece of land while prices are still low.

Not every boy or girl should go to college, nor should every family own a ranch; but another year or two of school while the opportunity offers, and a good lot before the big rise comes, are two things worth everything to the happiness and security of the later years.

The summer months always cause one to think of these things. In the first place, school is about over and the big problem is whether to go back in the fall or get a job and settle down. And, in the second place, the summer months offer opportunities to buy property that is certain to advance with the coming of fall.

The problems of more schooling and the acquisition of a lot should cause Glendale people to think carefully this summer and plan wisely for tomorrow.

NOT FOOLED BY GLOW

Earnestness is the balance wheel of our "jazz" age. Amid stupidity, folly and crime, the earnest person walks serene. "Not slothful in business, fervent in spirit," an inspired writer set down. Modern city life exhibits a hectic flare that illumines the heavens by night and the soul by day, with a sickly, superficial brilliance that many think "clever" and "smart."

The earnest person is not fooled by this false glow. In his soul burns the fire of ambition, deeper, more intense. While the stupid and the foolish are fused into the criminal under the superficial, hectic flare of our "jazz" age, the earnest person is proceeding straight to his goal, undazzled by all this stupidity and folly.

And the world is not "going to the dogs," as the calamity howlers like to wail, because there are always a majority of persons in the world intelligent enough and earnest enough to chart a straight course over the turbulent seas of life and adhere to it.

WOMAN'S CLUB GOOD ADVERTISING

It is interesting to speculate how many of the hundreds of club women who have come from the east and from all parts of the United States to attend the biennial convention will be discontented in the old home after seeing Southern California and being so hospitably and so lavishly entertained here. Every one of these visiting women is a potential resident of Southern California and it is well for Glendale that we are so well represented at the convention by a large club and by women who are so prominent in federation work. These things help to bring the name and fame of Glendale before the visiting women, and no advertising of this kind is to be despised. It is too bad that every one of the delegates could not have been brought to Glendale to visit our woman's club house and see our other attractions.

What Business Shall a Young Person Engage In?

By DR. FRANK CRANE

There is no more important question to be decided than this: What shall I do with my life?

It is to be decided by the young people. In fact the great issues are all decided by youth; in old age we abide by them, we make the best of them we can.

For the great questions are those which sit around the hearthstone of the heart, it is the smaller questions that peep out of the attic windows of the mind.

The great questions are those like: What woman shall I marry? and What business shall I engage in?

As to the former we have nothing to say. As to the latter we have several things to say. In the first place no one is qualified for business who has not a certain amount of capital. By this we do not mean money laid up in the bank only, but capital stored away in the shape of knowledge in the head and of skill in the hands. Always the question is asked not only, What can a man do? but What has he done?

Not only is capital good, therefore, in backing up a man, but capital of any kind is necessary. The poorest paid workers in the world are those who have nothing but themselves to offer and the labor of their hands.

The boy at school is laying up capital, enough capital to begin with. The apprentice is laying up capital, always something extra with which to equip himself for the future job.

Secondly, a man should have courage, courage to seize the opportunity when it comes, and willingness to throw himself, soul foremost, into any door that may open.

Very often a man fails to better his position simply because he lacks the courage to assume the duties of a higher one.

Next to capital and courage comes the knowledge of what one likes.

No man can get very far in a business that he does not like, into which he cannot throw himself enthusiastically.

A glance at the record of those who have succeeded shows that the masters are the men who like what they are doing, whether it is wheat growing or the managing of a bank.

In this there should be a liking for the work itself and not for its emoluments or byplay. For, to the man who does not like work and can find nothing into which he can throw himself with all his might, this is a cold world.

The great thing that is needed, however, is ambition. There are two ways to win: Either to create a chance or to take one.

The United States was an opportunity for the American Indian but he could not improve it.

Fortunately our life is doled out to us one day at a time. We should make of every morning a new beginning. There is a bigger job awaiting your ability to handle it. Where one man fails, another succeeds. Where the farmer starved, the Standard Oil started.

AIRSHIP BRAKES
(From Hollywood Citizen)

The sweet young thing who wanted to know what an aviator does when his engine quits working when he's up in the air several thousand feet may be interested in the news that the newest airships are to have brakes.

The new German-built Zeppelin, ZR-3, built for our government and scheduled to fly from Germany to Lakehurst, N. J., this summer, is equipped with five 400 horse power engines that will either drive forward or reverse without reverse gears.

Its improvements in the braking line may not help much in checking a downward plunge, but they will make it possible to put the ship to its mooring most easily or to slow it down when running before a strong wind.

Some of the other promises made for this new airship are its ability to carry forty-four tons of useful cargo through the air at eighty miles an hour. Thirty passengers and their baggage can be accommodated.

For scientific research, photography and study of topography, for rushing large medical stores, food and clothing to isolated regions stricken by flood, fire or earthquake, and for doing forest patrol work, believers in the Zeppelin type assert that their favorite is better prepared than any other sort of aircraft.

The public is still a little skeptical about these huge, unwieldy airships. There have been too many failures, too many terrible disasters in connection with them in proportion to their successes, to let them enjoy undisputed glory.

Still, the public is always willing to try again.

2 CENTS FOR GOOD ROADS
(From Long Beach Press)

Every time an automobile driver buys a gallon of gasoline he pays two cents toward better highways.

As the average motor car consumes several hundred gallons of fuel every year, and as California now has nearly 1,250,000 motor vehicles, two cents multiplied, say by 1000 and then by 1,250,000, produces quite a pretty sum. Anyone who doubts the statement is privileged to make his own computation.

To be more conservative, divide in half the estimated $25,000,000 annual return from the gasoline tax, and the fund available for road repair and maintenance is of no mean proportions. This support, added to county and district road taxes, and to state road bond funds, should provide the means required for adequate highway service. There should be no delay in the effort to overcome congestion on the boulevards between the two chief cities of Southern California, Los Angeles and Long Beach. Narrow pavements should be widened. Broken pavements should be mended. New roads should be opened, through reasonable co-operation between land owners and county or state.

That the automobile is an established institution is proved by the fact t at one person out of four is the owner of a motor car of some sort. This means that every family has at least one such machine; or will have at the earliest opportunity to procure one. With all the state on wheels, there is necessity for a dependable road program, one that will expand to meet the increasing demands.

The two cent tax on gasoline is a medium of great promise to this end.

MANY NEW LAWS
(From Kansas City Star)

Something like twelve thousand new laws are enacted in this country every year. That a good many of them are conflicting, ambiguous or of uncertain application is attested by the fact that the appelate courts, during a like period, hand down something like thirteen thousand judicial decisions. In America nobody can know whether a law is a law or not, or what it means, until it has been passed upon judicially. Thus we have one branch of the government making laws and another unmaking them, a process not alone costly and slow but probably destructive of respect for law; because the average citizen who takes the view that it's all a game of pitch and toss anyway isn't likely to put himself out to be bound by a law that may not be a law tomorrow.

The People —of— Anytown

Character Sketches

James Crabtree was one of the retired citizens of Anytown but he was far from retiring. Having no business of his own he had plenty of time to devote to the affairs of the town and he was conscientiously opposed to anything that anyone else favored. Unless an idea or a plan originated with him he fought it to the last ditch and it was seldom he had anything worth our consideration to propose.

I always thought of a game cock ready for a fight when I saw Crabtree. He was short and heavily built and red-faced. He had the air of being on the defensive all of the time. Crabtree was about the only man who ever opposed Mayor Caswell. Mr. Caswell was our mayor for a good many years and he managed the affairs of the town largely without consulting us but we knew that he was honest and conscientious and a man of excellent business judgment and Anytown made no mistake in trusting him.

Crabtree was never elected to any office or held a position of any kind in Anytown; in fact, he never sought any. Apparently he was honest but it always seems to me that those who suspect everyone of unscrupulousness must have something of hypocrisy in their own natures from which to form opinions of others. Crabtree questioned the motive of all who sought to do good and he suspected all of us of scheming for our own personal gain.

There never was an election in Anytown but Crabtree fought against every candidate and every proposal but after all his invective had very little effect. He made himself disagreeable but he had only one vote and we paid very little attention to his abuse. He very seldom had a constructive idea or suggestion. His forte was pulling down what some one else had built up. But one time he did make a good suggestion and Anytown adopted it so quickly that it surprised and silenced him.

We had a meeting in the town hall to consider macadamizing Main street. We all wanted the improvement but Crabtree made a speech voicing objections to spending money in that way and abusing those who had spoken in favor of the project. In the course of his speech he remarked that Anytown needed a fire engine. Mayor Caswell who was presiding turned the meeting, at once, into a fire engine meeting; we all applauded the idea and Crabtree found himself lined up with the rest of Anytown. He was so surprised he had nothing to say then or later and I really think he would have been better pleased had we turned down his suggestion.

Crabtree loved a fight. He was never so happy as when he was promoting bickering and discord among us even though he impeded Anytown's progress. As I said before he was disagreeable but we didn't give much heed to him.

THE CASE OF JENNIE BRICE

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Copyright, 1924, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate

The story so far:

Mrs. Pitman, who tells the story, ran away from home to marry, and was never reconciled to her old Pittsburgh family, although she returned to her home town to live after she became a widow. She kept boarders in what was then lower Allegheny where, because there were floods every year, rents were cheap. One March there was an unusually high flood. Miss Jennie Brice, as she was known on the stage, was having an unusually quarrelsome time with her husband, Mr. Ladley. Mrs. Pitman overheard them talking with a man, and Miss Brice said, "That's all very well, but what about that prying she-devil that runs the house?" That night the water rose high, and in the middle of the night another boarder, Mr. Reynolds, woke Mrs. Pitman to say somebody had just rowed away in the boat she had tied to the stairs in the lower hall. Mrs. Pitman later saw Mr. Ladley returning. He said he had been out for medicine for his wife. Peter, the dog, finds a slipper of Mrs. Ladley's floating in the parlor, and later a big knife of Mrs. Pitman's, with the blade broken. Mr. Ladley offers to pay Mrs. Pitman for a pillow slip he says was burned with a cigarette, and says his wife really was not ill, but went away in the night. A benevolent old gentleman, rowing around to feed stranded animals, stops at Mrs. Pitman's, and offers to help her. His name is Holcombe. They discover that an onyx clock from the mantelpiece in Ladley's room is missing. They also find a blood-stained towel. Mr. Howell, a young newspaper man, comes to help Holcombe. Mrs. Pitman finds a slip of paper on which is written, "Rope, knife, shoe, towel Horn—" Lida Harvey, Mrs. Pitman's niece, who has never seen her, comes to the house with Howell. Mr. Holcombe comes to live in the Ladleys' room. He takes some of Ladley's whiskey and it poisons him. Mrs. Pitman sees Jennie Brice's fur coat in Molly Maguire's yard next door. She recognizes Mr. Howell's voice as the one she heard in the Ladleys' room the day before the disappearance. He admits it.

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

XV—LADLEY RETURNS

That Thursday proved to be an exciting day. For late in the afternoon Terry, digging the mud out of the cellar, came across my missing gray false front near tthe coal vault, and brought it up, grinning. And just before six, Mr. Graves, the detective, rung the bell and then let himself in. I found him in the lower hall, looking around.

"Well, Mrs. Pitman," he said, "has our friend come back yet?"

"She was no friend of mine."

"Not she. Ladley. He'll be out this evening, and he'll probably be around for his clothes."

I felt my knees waver, as they always did when he was spoken of.

"He may want to stay here," said Mr. Graves. "In fact, I think that's just what he will want."

"Not here," I protested. "The very thought of him makes me quake."

"If he comes here, better take him in. I want to know where he is."

I tried to say that I wouldn't have him, but the old habit of the ward asserted itself. From taking a bottle of beer or a slice of pie, to telling one where one might or might not live, the police were autocrates in that neighborhood. And, respectable woman that I am, my neighbors' fears of the front office have infected me.

"All right, Mr. Graves," I said.

He pushed the parlor door open and looked in, whistling. "This is the place, isn't it,"

"Yes. But it was upstairs that he—"

"I see. Tall woman, Mrs. Ladley?"

"Tall and blond. Very airy in her manner."

He nodded and still stood looking in and whistling. "Never heard her speak of a town named Horner, did you?"

"Horner?" No."

"I see." He turned and wandered out again into the hall, still whistling. At the door, however, he stopped and turned. "Look anything like this?" he asked, and held out one of his hands with a small kodak picture on the palm.

It was a snapshot of a children's frolic in a village street, with some onlookers in the background. Around one of the heads had been drawn a circle in pencil. I took it to the gas-jet and looked at it closely. It was a tall woman with a hat on, not unlike Jennie Brice. She was looking over the crowd, and I could see only her face, and that in shadow. I shook my head.

"I thought not," he said. "We have a lot of stage pictures of her, but what with false hair and their being retouched beyond recognition, they don't amount to much." He started out, and stopped on the doorstep to light a cigar.

"Take him on if he comes," he said. "And keep your eyes open. Feed him well, and he won't kill you!"

I had plenty to think of when I was cooking Mr. Reynolds' supper; the chance that I might have Mr. Ladley again, and the woman at Horner. For it had come to me like a flash, as Mr. Graves left, that the "Horn—" on the paper slip might have been "Horner."

After all, there was nothing sensational about Mr. Ladley's return. He came at 8 o'clock that night, fresh-shaved, and with his hair cut, and, although he had a latchkey, he rang the doorbell. I knew his ring, and I thought it no harm to carry an old razor of Mr. Pitman's with the blade open and folded back on the handle, the way the colored people use them, in my left hand.

But I saw at once that he meant no mischief.

"Good evening," he said, and put out his hand. I jumped back, until I saw there was nothing in it and that he only meant to shake hands. I didn't do it; I might have to take him in, and make his bed, and cook his meals, but I did not have to shake hands with him.

"You, too!" he said, looking at me with what I suppose he meant to be a reproachful look. But he could no more put an expression of that sort in his eyes than a fish could. "I suppose, then, there is no use asking if I may have my old room? The front room. I won't need two."

I didn't want him, and he might have seen it. But I took him. "You may have it, as far as I'm concerned," I said. "But you'll have to let the paper-hanger in tomorrow."

"Assuredly." He came into the hall and stood looking around him, and I fancied he drew a breath of relief. "It isn't much yet," he said, "but it's better to look at than six feet of muddy water."

"Or than stone walls," I said.

He looked at me and smiled. "Or than stone walls," he repeated, bowing, and went into his room.

So I had him again, and if I gave him only the dull knives, and locked up the breadknife the moment I had finished with it, who can blame me? I took all the precaution I could think of: had Terry put an extra bolt on every door, and hid the rat poison and the carbolic acid in the cellar.

Peter would not go near him. He hobbled around on his three legs, with the splint beating a sort of tattoo on the floor, but he stayed back in the kitchen with me, or in the yard.

It was Sunday night or early Monday morning that Jennie Brice disappeared. On Thursday evening her husband came back. On Friday the body of a woman was washed ashore at Beaver, but turned out to be that of a stewardess who had fallen overboard from one of the Cincinnati packets. Mr. Ladley himself showed me the article in the morning paper, when I took in his breakfast.

"Public hysteria has killed a man before this," he said, when I had read it. "Suppose that woman had been mangled, or the screw of the steamer had cut her head off! How many people do you suppose would have been willing to swear that it was my—was Mrs. Ladley?"

"Even without a head, I should know Mrs. Ladley," I retorted.

He shrugged his shoulders. "Let's trust she's still alive, for my sake," he said. "But I'm glad anyhow, that this woman had a head. You'll allow me to be glad won't you?"

"You can be anything you want, as far as I'm concerned," I snapped, and went out.

Horoscope

Copyright, 1924, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Astrologers read this as a doubtful day for, while Mercury is in benefic aspect, Neptune is adverse.

This should be a lucky day for signing leases and contracts. It is good for settling accounts and computing interest.

Under this sway, messages of pleasing import are likely to be received from foreign countries and newspapers should profit by increased circulation.

Publicity is under a direction of the stars, making for the greatest demand for all forms of advertising. Publishers will benefit and so will editors.

Farmers should benefit from certain weather conditions and also from improved market prices.

Again the seers repeat their often issued warning that the prices of food will continue high.

Neptune is an aspect denoting religious scandals and unless the seers are misled there will be many controversies among persons of different faiths.

Creeds will be much discussed at this time, when persons whose church is their automobile and whose treasures are laid up in banks instead of in heaven become sensitive about a man's method of saying his prayers.

There is a forecast of new international complications in which American diplomacy will be tested.

War clouds that are as yet little more than a mist are said to be gathering surely in Europe and Uncle Sam should not fail to keep his weather eye open, astrologers assert.

Mercury gives a foreshadowing of some sort of mistake that a high government official of the United States will make with a most far-reaching result.

Fraud and robbery will increase during the summer, when novel cases of expert thievery will be discovered.

Persons whose birthday it is may expect a very active year. They should watch their financial affairs.

Children born on this day probably will be quiet and clever and on the whole very fortunate in all business enterprises. Girls are usually most attractive and the objects of much adoration.

FIRE MENACE TO GLENDALE SHOWN AT C. OF C. MEET

Forest Protective Branch to Be Organized Here to Combat Outbreaks

Organization of a branch of the Angelus Forest Protective association was discussed at length at last night's meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce, following the presentation of the report of W. J. Curren, chairman of the fire protection committee.

Mr. Curren detailed the plans for the organization of a fire-fighting unit in Glendale that would concern itself with the protection of the adjacent watershed area in case of forest fires, stating that ten men would be chosen to organize ten units of ten men each, who would be drilled and equipped to battle in a systematic manner any outbreak that might occur.

Director P. J. Hayselden emphasized the menace that exists in this territory because of the long dry spell that has been experienced this season, and declaring that, while other communities are organized to combat this threat of fire, Glendale is absolutely unprotected, and must depend on the associations in neighboring cities and on her own untrained volunteers to fight any fire that may occur.

Lures Outdoor Men

The resources of the county, state and federal forest protective organizations are at the disposal of any community that is willing to avail itself of them, Mr. Hayselden declared, and he was insistent on the immediate organization of a fire-fighting body that would stand between Glendale and the threat of destruction from forest fires. In addition to acting as a fire-fighting machine, said Mr. Hayselden, the organization that is planned will have a social side that will appeal to many, especialy to rugged, outdoor men, who are especially fitted to cope with emergencies such as arise in the event of a forest fire.

Mr. Curren was authorized to proceed with the organization of his fire-fighting units, and to keep the Chamber posted on the progress that is being made.

Rowley Reports

L. T. Rowley reported on the meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of the San Fernando valley, held recently at Owensmouth, and also on the meeting with the Board of Supervisors in Los Angeles, Monday, when the question of widening of Glendale boulevard was discussed. Mr. Rowley also reported that the greater part of the money allotted to this county from the division of the state gasoline tax is to be spent on the San Fernando valley roads in adherence to the policy that this fund must be expended in the maintenance of through traffic highways, rather than on city streets.

The American Society of Engineers, that will meet at Pasadena this month, will pass through Glendale on June 19, en route to Culver City, and plans are being made to welcome them at the eastern city limits of Glendale, and to escort them through the city. The executive boards of all local organizations will be asked to participate in the exercises that will be held.

Industrial Survey

The expert who is to make a survey of Glendale's industrial situation will start his task this week, continuing over a period of at least six weeks.

Representatives of the Chamber of Commerce will be present at the dinner that is to be held Friday, June 13, at the City club in Los Angeles, when the plans to erect four county hospitals at widely separated points in the county will be taken up. It is planned to send medical men to represent Glendale at this conference.

President W. E. Hewitt stated that a meeting of the Glendale Welfare Chest will be held Friday, when plans for the drive to raise funds for those local organization that are beneficiaries of the fund will be discussed.

APPLAUSE MARKS MURPHY COMEDY

'The Unkissed Bride' Voted Best Play Staged in Big Tent Theatre

Continuous laughs from 8:15 until 11 o'clock nightly at the big tent on Stocker street between Brand boulevard and Central avenue, Casa Verdugo, indicate what the public thinks of Murphy's Comedians, whose latest comedy, "The Unkissed Bride," is voted the funniest yet.

The play depicts what comes of a "mock" marriage that turns out to be real, and is one of those boudoir farces riotously, hilariously, uproariously funny, yet absolutely clean. Whole families go to see Murphy's Comedians, knowing that they get good wholesome fun at popular prices.

"The Unkissed Bride" will continue throughout the week. Starting Sunday, June 15, "East is West" will probably be the play, it was announced last night.

PATRIOTIC TALKS ON CLUB PROGRAM

Judge W. S. Baird Speaks at Exchange Luncheon on American Flag

Residents of the United States are all Americans or they are not Americans, Judge W. S. Baird told the members of the Exchange club at the regular weekly luncheon held yesterday at the Harriett Mae Tea room. There are no hyphenated Americans, he said, and the phrase, "100 per cent Americanism," is generally misapplied.

Lack of respect for the flag is one of the greatest disasters in this country, Judge Baird said. People coming to the United States to live must learn their respect for the American flag from the residents of this country, he said, and if native Americans desecrate the Stars and Stripes, persons from foreign countries will do the same.

He warned the members concerning the hidden menace, as he called it ,the I. W. W., and characterized them as persons who destruct but never construct. He called attention to Flag Day, which will be celebrated next Saturday, and asked Members of the club to take the initiative in seeing that the United States flag was not desecrated by draping from automobiles, used as bunting, or placed in any but the proper position.

Gives Legion Ideas

Dr. E. H. Armstrong, a member of the American Legion, spoke briefly on the ideas and purposes of the American Legion and read the preamble of the Legion constitution. He asked the members of the club to accord the same hearty support to the Legion as they did to the soldiers during the war, and to welcome them now as they did when the service men returned from France.

In keeping with the patriotic idea that marked the meeting, A. M. Dewey told how he drafted the flag ritual now used in all Elk lodges. He related incidents connected with a convention in 1880 in Harrisburg, when a faction sought to give the Stars and Stripes replaced with the red flag. There were 1,100 delegates present, he said, and the oratory lasted for five days. When a sought to have the Stars and Stripes won by a majority of eleven votes, he said. He repeated the ritual which he drafted shortly after that convention.

Postpone Fishing Trip

The Exchange club fishing trip, planned for next week, has been postponed until next month, President A. L. Baird announced. The members will leave here on July 3 and return on July 7, according to the present plans.

During the absence of T. H. Culhane, secretary of the club, George H. Thomas will act as temporary secretary. D. Ripley Jackson, postmaster, led the community singing.

Brief patriotic addresses were made by W. H. Daniel, George H. Thomas, Postmaster Jackson H. C. Vanderwater and H. M Bennett.

Occult Science Club Will Meet Thursday

The Occult Science Health and Success club is to hold its regular weekly meeting at 8 o'clock Thursday night at 113 South Orange street. Guy B. Moore is to give a lecture. Later there will be a message circle with a message for each one present.

PLENTY OF HUMOR FOUND IN 'KEMPY'

Romance and Wit Abound in Play to Be Given by Community Service

Romance and humor are found aplenty in the comedy "Kempy" to be produced Thursday and Saturday nights, June 12 and 14, at the Harvard High school by the players of Community Service.

In addition to seeing one of New York's recent successes, Glendale drama lovers are to see some of their talented favorites in the various characters.

Granville Sturgis is directing the play, and according to Mrs. Max Lynn Green, chairman of the drama department of Community Service, the play is to be the best offering yet. In order that the play can be more thoroughly appreciated, Mrs. Green has given the following story of the plot:

Kempy was a very ordinary young man with a desire to be an architect. While in France, during the war, he read a book at a Y. M. C. A. hut that gave him the inspiration to draw plans for a wonderful church. He also made a vow that he would marry the girl who wrote the book if he ever met her. Several years later the plumbing in the home of Dad and Ma Bence needed fixing, and Kempy, who had taken up plumbing until he could get some clients for architectural work, was sent to fix it. There he met Ruth, the younger daughter of the family, with whom he talked in regard to his plans and ambitions. She found out about his having read her sister's book and also the vow he had made to marry her.

They Are Married

Kate, the middle daughter in the family, was totally different from the rest, always taking up some new line of art work, but never being very successful in any of it. She had quarreled with Duke, her wealthy lover, because he did not believe in her ability to produce one really great piece of artistic work. At this critical moment Ruth tells her of Kempy, how he had believed in her book and the vow he had made to marry her. Disgusted with her family and Duke and their lack of confidence in her, she determines to hold Kempy to his vow of marriage. Kempy is somewhat staggered by the proposition, but is willing to be a good sport and carry it through. They leave in the boss' flivver for the little town across the river, forgetting to turn on the water in the house before they leave.

Duke returns to patch up the quarrel and Ben, the son-in-law, persuades him to buy the house and give it to Kate, saying that it will make quite an impression on her. After this matter has been settled and Duke and Ben have gone, Kate telephones that she is married and is bringing her husband home, asking that they treat him with respect for her sake. The family, thinking of course, that she has run off and married Duke, make great preparations for their return. Imagine their anger and disappointment when they arrive and Kate announces that Kempy is her husband. Dad in his fury sends Kate to her room and Kempy out of the house. Ruth and Ma bring him back, feeling that the reputation of the family is at stake if he is not allowed to stay in their home.

Kempy Gets House

Duke returns and, learning of the situation, exchanges his bill of sale for the house for Kempy's complete set of church plans, thus making it possible for Kempy to assert himself as Kate's husband and the head of the house.

About this time Kempy and Ruth discover that they care for each other, and Ruth decides that as long as she is Kate's husband she will go away to school. Meantime, Duke has been doing a bit of investigating, and believes the marriage to be invalid. This he finds is so when Kempy admits he is not of age. Ruth and Kempy are made very happy, and Kate, realizing that she has made a mistake, is glad to return to her former lover, Duke.

Planks In Platform Sanitarium Growing The Clearing House Barroom Arguments

By Gil A. Cowan

Planks in the Republican party which have been indicated as acceptable to the president are, for the most part, a repetition of party principles in years gone by However, there is a slightly progressive note which will please those who tend to take up with radical issues. And there is an equal amount of conservatism expressed in the tentative platform.

Tax reform and economy appear paramount issues with the president. But one of the most insistent clauses is that pertaining to the world court. Seemingly, it will not down. The subtle influences of those who would place Europe's future on the American money market for the public to gamble with—they are present in high Republican and Democratic circles alike.

Naturally, the administration has many things of which to be proud. Two issues are opened, nevertheless, in a clause entitled, "senate scandals" when in reality it should have read "cabinet scandals." Also, the subject of prohibition is lightly dwelt upon in the tentative platform in face of "the wettest season" in the country's history since B. V. D. (Before Volstead's Day, if you please).

The agricultural interests will find solace, no doubt, in a pledge of "all necessary government assistance in organizing and establishing a system for co-operative marketing and in simplifying and cheapening our marketing and distributing machinery." Also, there is a pledge to strengthen and broaden export markets, work for railroad rate revision to reduce rates on agricultural products, and a pledge of adequate appropriations for good roads.

The bonus issue will be ignored, it being a closed book in the eyes of the leaders, but every aid, financially and otherwise, for the disabled veterans is promised. That is intended to appeal to the men who served.

All in all, the Republican platform appears to be sane and safe and more or less innocuous. Certainly, there is no occasion for business to take affright.

The Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital has reached a point where financing becomes a paramount issue and the very capable manager, C. E. Kimlin, takes over the arduous duties of treasurer. To him is entrusted the task of making the institution pay out on its debentures, which is a most important task.

During his management the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital has enjoyed undreamed prosperity and it has now reached a point where the business is as great as accommodations permit.

As a result, it will take an ever watchful eye to provide the funds for greater progress and Mr. Kimlin has demonstrated his ability to do so in bringing together the forces of the Seventh-day Adventist church in the building of the splendid monument to their beliefs in health and humanitarian service.

The advisory manager, Frank E. Corson, is well known in business circles and with J. A. Burden to attend to the details of the managerial duties a triumvirate will have been established that augurs well for the future.

In permitting Dr. H. G. Westphal to pursue the surgical field by having Dr. A. M. Truman take over the medical superintendency, a great relief has been given the former who has tirelessly filled two positions in order that the sanitarium and hospital of his day dreams might become a reality.

While it was Mr. Kimlin who dealt with the business details, the writer is informed that Dr. Westphal actually was the visionary who saw the possibilities of the Pacific portal to health, as the Glendale sanitarium is known, and the two set forth together on the program which has been nobly supported by the church.

The Glendale Evening News in establishing a free information bureau has taken a step long contemplated as its contribution to public service. There is nothing more necessary in this city than a clearing house for information and, while the newspaper serves in that regard to a large extent, there are a large number of immediate and personal questions to be answered. That is exactly what The Glendale News information bureau proposes to do with your assistance—to be in a position to answer such queries.

All of which reminds the writer of the B. V. D. period (See paragraph three) when barroom arguments led to calling upon a newspaper man to settle the moot question. Usually, it was the date that Jim Jeffries won his heavyweight crown and how. And you had to give an answer before the telephone bell would stop ringing.

Those were the days when a World almanac was a necessity.

CONSIDER BILLS FOR ADVERTISING

Board of Control Requests Committee to Adjust Several Charges

Consideration of the bills that have been incurred in connection with Glendale's advertising campaign occupied the attention of the Board of Control at its meeting yesterday afternoon in the Chamber of Commerce, the members deciding to pass some of the bills for payment and to hold others up for further inspection of the items involved.

In the matter of the folders that have just come from the printers, the bill for $1302 was allowed, as was that of $75 for one of the cuts used in the folder. Other bills that were referred back to the advertising committee for reconsideration and adjustment covered the engraving of the cuts, the layout for the folder, and the bill for the photographs used.

Reduces Charges

A letter from Charles R. Stewart, the advertising expert, who had been employed to assist in planning the campaign, stated that, as he was leaving for Europe this month, he had prepared enough material to be used in a six months' campaign, and had turned it over to the committee all at the same time, instead of sending it in from month to month over the six months' period that it has been planned to extend the campaign.

The letter also stated that, instead of prolonging the work over the six months at a monthly salary of $250, or a total of $1500, Mr. Stewart would cut this amount in half, and would accept $750 in full for his services. This question will be taken up for decision at a meeting of the Board of Control, at which it is hoped to secure a more representative turnout than was present yesterday.

Shows Economies

Paul E. Stillman, chairman of the advertising committee, pointed out that, by cutting Mr. Stewart's salary in half, as suggested in the latter's letter, in eliminating the item of $2000 for a publicity man, and in keeping the cost of the art work for the campaign below the original estimate, the committee had been able to effect a considerable saving on the outlay as outlined in the budget.

The Board of Control authorized the advertising committee to begin running the first of the series of advertisements, not to extend over a period of four weeks, unless so approved by the organization.

DELEGATES HOLD ANNUAL ELECTION

Federation Convention Will Select Successor to Mrs. T. G. Winter

Interest among the club women at the biennial convention, General Federation of Women's clubs, in Los Angeles, has been intense today over the election, which is featured by choosing a successor to Mrs. Thomas G. Winter.

Immediately following the report of the nominating committee yesterday, giving the names of Mrs. John S. Sherman of Colorado and Mrs. Wallace Perham of Montana as candidates for president, Mrs. W. S. Jennings of Florida was nominated from the floor. However, at the close of the session Mrs. Jennings withdrew from the presidential race.

Prominent club women are predicting the election of Mrs. Sherman. Others supporting Mrs. Perham predict that if Mrs. Sherman is elected it will be by a small majority.

Introduce Resolutions

Introduction of sixteen new resolutions, the unanimous adoption of a previously stated desire for the enforcement of prohibition and opposition to any change in statutes providing for no more than one-half of 1 per cent alcoholic content of liquor, and charges that certain speakers are spreading disloyal pacifism under the guise of aiding to bring about world peace, were among the outstanding features in yesterday's session.

The subject of "American Citizenship" will dominate the convention tomorrow. The session in the morning will begin at 9:30 o'clock with special speakers on American citizenship. At noon there will be a luncheon at the Biltmore hotel under the American citizenship department.

In the afternoon the same theme will be considered and at night Dr. Carrie Chapman Catt will speak on "The Three I's." Later the general federation citizenship day pageant will be given.

Girls' Athletics Will Aid Race, Says Doctor

LONDON, June 11.—"Don't think all this exercise for girls is going to have a very harmful effect on the next generation," says Lady Barrett, premier woman doctor of England.

"The idea that a healthy, athletic life is bad for girls is utterly ridiculous.

"The modern way of giving girls plenty of fresh air and plenty of outdoor sport, which means that they eat and sleep, well, is making a much more splendid race."

SPECIAL TRAINS TO BOSTON MEET

Union Pacific Plans to Care For G. A. R. and W. R. C. Members on Trip

Special trains will be run over the Union Pacific lines for the benefit of the G. A. R., W. R. C. and other affiliated organizations which will hold their annual encampment this year at Boston from August 10 to 15, it is announced at the local office.

A special fare will go into effect for the trip that is approximately a one-way fare for the round trip. This special rate will be placed on sale from August 2 to 11 with the return limit set for October 1. For several years the Union Pacific has run one or more special trains for the exclusive accommodation of the civil war organizations and arrangements this year will be as in former years.

A large number from the General N. P. Banks post are attending the Southern California encampment in session this week at San Diego. Past Commander T. M. Barrett reports that several members of the local post are also planning on making the trip to Boston, accompanied by their families. A. W. Scudder of 320 West Harvard street, who has not missed an encampment in years, will be one of those attending from Glendale.

REALTY BROKER ENLARGES FORCE

E. G. Warren Has Confidence In Glendale's Future Business Growth

Believing that increased business activities will result from the influx of summer tourists, E. G. Warren, real estate broker, is showing his disbelief in the pessimistic reports concerning business conditions by increasing his force and enlarging his office with the expectation of activity in all lines of real estate during the summer months.

Mr. Warren has purchased the real estate business of Harvey C. Patterson at 1330 East Colorado and will have a well-rounded selling organization there as well as at the main office on South Brand, for the handling of subdivision properties as well as local real estate in Glendale and vicinity.

Confidence in the future of Glendale and a deep-seated belief that business conditions will improve, caused Mr. Warren to take these steps in preparing for an increase in business that he is positive will come. He feels that those who hesitate at this time will not reap the benefits that would result from a confidence in the people and the future of the city of Glendale.

Four Questions

He says that if the four questions which he proposes are fairly answered, they will lead anyone to the answer to the question of the future, which is—Prosperity. The questions asked by him are:

"Is thehe a better place to live than Southern California, in or near Glendale?

"Are thousands of the most ambitious and well-to-do people coming here to live?

Do practically all of them bring some money to invest?"

"What effect does increasing population and money have upon a community?"

School matters, the new reservoir on Western avenue and Tenth street, and other items of vital interest to the citizens of the northwest section will be taken up for consideration and action.

ARIZONA SEEKING NATIONAL PARK

Would Thwart Curio Seekers In Petrified Forest by Government Control

PHOENIX, June 11.—Arizona's famous petrified forest is disappearing under the hand of the collection seeker. To halt these inroads, commercial interests of northern Arizona are seeking to secure a congressional enactment converting the forest into a national park, thereby protecting and preserving this great natural curiosity. Lacking protection, thousands of pieces of choice chalcedony, or petrified wood, have been taken from the forest by visitors, and tons of the rarity have been shipped east for jewelry manufacture.

MAY USE STREET TO CARRY WATER

Experts Favor Depressing Pavements for Burbank Flood Control

BURBANK, June 11.—Flood control here centers around depressing one or more streets leading down from the hills. Supervisor Henry W. Wright, during a recent inspection trip, stated he saw no reason why a well paved street might not be sufficiently depressed in the center to carry off water, and said that Glendale is doing the same thing now.

He stated that shortly after the flood which swept down from the burned-over hills, he and a few others were looking over the situation. In the party was an engineer from the office of the flood control department, and he said he saw no way of handling the problem but to depress one of the streets, the one that would be the most natural channel for the water.

The supervisor emphasized the point that the state law said water might not be diverted from its natural channel, and that it had been tried and would not hold. He cited one instance of where the supervisors had done that, and they were obliged to undo their work.

GUILD WILL HOLD PICNIC JUNE 26

Members of St. Luke's Will Entertain Friends at Brookside Park

LA CRESCENTA, June 11.—The most important business to come before the members of the guild of St. Luke's of the Mountains at the meeting held at the home of Mrs. Seymour Thomas at Cuddle Doon was that of the first picnic to be given by the guild members.

This picnic will be held in Brookside park on Thursday, June 26, when all members of the guild and their families and friends will, it is expected, be present.

Invitations are to be sent to several notable people who have helped St. Luke's in any way.

Other business discussed at the meeting was a bazaar to be held after resuming the business sessions in September. The women will prepare suitable articles for the affair during the summer recess.

A letter was read from Mrs. Willoughby Rodman, well known welfare worker and speaker, who will give one of her interesting talks at the home of Mrs. P. Hansen, of Flintridge.

Tickets for this affair are $1 each, half of which goes to the Russian Refugee Student fund, the other half going to local causes.

PERMANENT CLUB HOME WILL OPEN

Tujunga Women Invite All Valley Organizations to House Warming

TUJUNGA, June 11.—Plans have been made by the Tujunga Women's club to hold open house June 23, in the new clubhouse, now under construction on San Ysidro street.

All the clubs of the San Fernando valley and the Verdugo hills will be invited to participate in the celebration of the completion of the first permanent home the club has had.

The club has prospered and has grown rapidly in the last few years. Under the leadership of Mrs. Nelson E. Jones last year, the membership increased to 120, and over $1000 was raised toward the building fund through food sales and entertainments.

To Hold Election

Thursday, June 12, there will be an election of officers for the coming year. The popular sentiment of many of the members is that only the refusal of Mrs. Jones to accept the office will prevent her being re-elected president for another term.

A dance was given Tuesday night at Masonic hall by the Women's club, and a substantial sum was added to the building fund.

KIWANIANS PICK DENVER DELEGATE

D. G. Montgomery to Attend National Convention; Eagle Rock Notes

EAGLE ROCK, June 11.—Donnell G. Montgomery has been named as the official delegate of the local Kiwanis club to the national convention at Denver, Colo., June 16. On that date this chapter will hold a supper at which "the ladies" will be the honor guests. As other Kiwanis clubs throughout the country are meeting for dinner on the same night, which marks the great banquet at the convention, the affair will be more than usually interesting.

The story of the "big one" that did not get away is being told by O. F. Kroehle, local realtor, who, with his wife, returned Sunday night from a fishing trip to Big Bear and Lake Arrowhead.

This particular "big one," which was caught at Big Bear, weighed five pounds and was considered one of the best catches of the season thus far. Mr. and Mrs. Kroehle took the Mill Creek road into Big Bear and returned via the Rim of the World and through Arrowhead. They started on their trip last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Ritchey have returned from their tour around the world. While they declare that foreign travel was fascinating, no visit was as interesting as the stay at the old home town, Gainsville, Okla.

There is an air of activity about the scene of construction at Colorado and Maywood avenues. The excavation has been completed and the foundation laid. It will not be long before local Congregationalists will be able to meet in their new auditorium.

L. V. Stockwell had as his guests recently his father, W. M. Stockwell, and his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Cady, all from Ocean Park. W. M. Stockwell had not visited Eagle Rock for many years and was amazed at the growth of the community.

VALLEY REALTORS MEET AT SUNLAND

General Discussion Held on Tracts, Titles, Maps and Property Values

SUNLAND, June 11.—Members of the Tujunga Valley Realty board met Monday noon at Rice's cafe for a general discussion of realty conditions—and a chicken-pie dinner.

Like the Walrus and the Carpenter, they talked of many things, but there was no mention of either cabbages or kings. Torrens titles, local valley tracts, maps and restrictions on property and practical information on local real estate matters were among the subjects touched.

Whether it was the chicken in the pie or the service was not definitely determined, but "a good time was had by all."

Mrs. B. Collins Brown of 143 Mayfield avenue is entertaining as her guests her son and his family, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Brown of Los Angeles. Gilbert Brown is the editor of The Los Angeles City Record.

P.-T. A. Board Changes Date of Beach Picnic

LA CRESCENTA, June 11.—The picnic planned for Friday of this week by the executive board of the Parent-Teacher association will be held instead on Saturday when the eighth grade will entertain the graduating class with an all day picnic at Redondo Beach.

Principal T. A. Blanchard has made arrangements for the transportation of the young people. The teachers will be taken to the beach by members of the executive board of the Parent-Teacher association, who will also furnish a portion of the lunch.

The autos will leave here about 9 a. m.

The C. A. Young garage at the corner of Los Angeles and Honolulu avenues has installed another large pumping supply gas tank to take care of the increase in traffic.

Anyone who witnessed the accident at intersection of South Central and West Howard Thursday evening, June 5, at 6:20 o'clock, please call Glen. 2388.

HOST TO SCOUTS AT HOUSE PARTY

H. B. Robison Throws La Crescenta Estate Open to Boys

Las Robles Verdes, the La Crescenta home of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Robison, was the scene of a jolly week-end party of Boy Scouts from Avalon, Catalina Island, brought over by Scoutmaster H. Benjamin Robison. The party included a large group of Scouts, Sea Scouts and Cub Scouts, who participated Saturday in the big field meet in the Rose Bowl in Pasadena.

Nearly 1000 Scouts took part in the great meet, in which the Avalon boys won places in bugling and signaling.

D. M. Renton, vice-president and manager of Catalina Island company, and several committeemen came over to see the island troop compete.

Saturday night the boys enjoyed a theatre party in Glendale. They returned to the island on Sunday.

New Montrose Hotel Is Now In Operation

MONTROSE, June 11.—Stephen Myers has furnished his new Montrose hotel and is managing the establishment himself. This is the first hotel in the bustling little city of Montrose, and fills a long felt need.

Why I Am In Glendale

I came to Glendale primarily at the earnest solicitation and advice of near relatives who had preceded me to California. Upon checking up on the superior advantages ascribed to it by my friends, I found them good and well founded, and decided to make Glendale my home. Personally I believe that this method will get people here better than any other because all advertising is taken at a certain per cent less than its face value, but letters from people you know carry weight. So let's all remember this and back up our several organizations and local press in publicity campaigns.

Glendale's easy accessibility, its charming and inspiring approach from all directions, and the beautiful and restful view it affords of our mountains, are the natural advantages that decided me. I know now that it is peopled in the main with high class, wholesome, ambitious and optimistic people, with a goal set high.

Roscenta Chorus to Hold Community Sing

MONTROSE, June 11.—Thursday of this week the Roscenta chorus will hold its regular weekly sing at the Montrose schoolhouse at 8 o'clock. Mrs. A. F. Hopkins, the president, urges a large attendance for the evening. Miss Marguerite Hauber is to present the program assisted by a well known Los Angeles artist. There will not be many more weekly sings this season, and for that reason the president and director request every member make an effort to be present and bring their friends.

FRUIT GROWERS TO HEAR EXPERT

Farm Adviser Will Address Meeting on June 19th At Owensmouth

The new San Fernando Valley Deciduous Fruit Center, under the leadership of H. H. A. Hastings, Jr., of Encino Acres, is making plans for a meeting to be held on Thursday, June 19, 8 p. m., at the Owensmouth auditorium.

Farm Adviser Robert W. Hodgson has been secured to address the center on irrigation practices. Mr. Hodgson has been in active work in Los Angeles County for a period of six years and is thoroughly familiar with the conditions as they exist in the San Fernando Valley and has a real message to present to the growers of the valley. The subject of irrigation is especially important during the present season on account of the insufficient rainfall and the great necessity of maintaining proper health through the application of irrigation water. In addition to the talk by Mr. Hodgson, some time will be given to an open forum discussion led by Mr. Hodgson.

Election of officers for the coming year will take place at this meeting. The present officers are serving temporarily while the organization is being completed.

The meeting is open to all those interested in the growing of fruit.

DISEASE LED TO AUTHOR'S SUICIDE

Close Friend of Macfarlane Reveals Haunting Fear As Illness Grew

DETROIT, June 11.—Peter Clark Macfarlane, the noted author who killed himself in San Francisco Monday night, told Dr. W. L. Stidger about two weeks ago he feared sickness would drive him to suicide, it was learned.

The pastor of St. Marks M. E. church here and Macfarlane were close friends.

"He had ten years been a diabetes victim," said Dr. Stidger. "About two weeks ago, in a New York hotel, Macfarlane told me that some time before he had planned to kill himself on his California estate by running his automobile into a tree.

"He said, 'Bill, I was ready to do it when friends came to dinner and I didn't want to spoil the party and make my wife unhappy. Then my sickness seemed better and I decided to live.

"'But, Bill, if I do kill myself, tell them I was crazy. The disease made me so sometimes.'"

KING MAKERS OF OLD TIMES FADE OUT OF PICTURE

Surviving Czars of Former Conventions Looking In From Outside

By ROBERT T. SMALL
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

CLEVELAND, June 11—Where are the "king makers" of yester year? What has become of that powerful little group of statesmen which could meet in the back room of a hotel, or any other place and say just what a Republican convention should do? Four years ago they were in their glory. Today they are scattered to the four winds. Small wonder then that the Cleveland convention seems different.

Call the roll of the president makers of 1920. They met in the Blackstone hotel in Chicago early on a Saturday morning when the delegates and the casual observers thought the convention was in a serious deadlock. There was Senator Lodge of Massachusetts and Ex-Senator Murray Crane, of the same state; "Pussyfoot" they used to call him. There was Senator Smoot of Utah; Senator Knox of Pennsylvania and there was the all-powerful Senator Penrose on the far end of a long distance telephone line leading to his sick room at Atlantic City. There was George Harvey, the Journalist, who had "made" Grover Cleveland and Woodrow Wilson before he turned Republican to "make" Warren G. Harding. There was Will H. Hays of Indiana, chairman of the Republican national committee and last but by no means least was Harry M. Daugherty of Ohio, the very man who had predicted from the beginning that the nomination of 1920 would go to the winner of the back room conference.

Death Claims Three

Death laid a heavy hand on that assemblage. Murray Crane was first to go, then Knox and then Penrose. Four of the others are here in Cleveland, but they are scattered among the crowds far from the throne room or even the approaches to the seats of the mighty.

There is Senator Lodge, all powerful in the selection of a candidate from Ohio four years ago but not consulted today about any detail of the candidacy of a man from his own home state. Few persons realize the full extent of the political ignominy which has come to the sincere senator from the land of the sacred cod. For 24 years Henry Cabot Lodge has been a masterful figure at his party conventions. He actually has presided over three of the last six national gatherings. He was permanent chairman at Philadelphia in 1900 when McKinley was named for second term. He wielded the gavel again in 1908 when Taft first was named and he steered the ship of the G. O. P., at Chicago four years ago when Warren Harding received what proved to be a sentence of death. At the intervening conventions Cabot Lodge either was chairman of the resolutions committee, which drafted the platform, or held other high offices. It had remained for 1924 to see his fall from grace. It is asserted that he has failed to support President Coolidge and he is paying the penalty. He has been bereft of almost every thing except his vote and that he must cast for the Hon. Calvin Coolidge.

Smoot Drops Out

Senator Smoot is here alone, but, like his colleague from the Old Bay State, he is no longer in the inner circles. His state delegation is still loyal to him, however, and he has been given the committee memberships of his own selection. Mr. Smoot would like to have a good word said for the senate in the platform but he will not be surprised if he is disappointed.

Harry M. Daugherty, ex-attorney general, is here as a delegate-at-large from Ohio. This was an honor he could not win when he was "making" a president, but it has come to him at the hands of the people of his state after his resignation from the cabinet was requested. Mr. Daugherty is very "regular" and is going along with his delegation, ready to vote solemnly and solidly for Mr. Coolidge when the day of the balloting begins. But the Coolidge "machine" heeds him not.

Harvey On Hand

Colonel George Harvey, the president - maker extraordinary and president-breaker plenipotentiary, is here in all the glory of his new occupation as the editor-in-chief of a daily newspaper. The colonel arrived with a couple of secretaries, a valet, and a retinue of reporters. He came out on a train from Washington with Frank W. Stearns, of the Coolidge campaign cabinet, but never the twain did meet. There will be conferences in the colonel's rooms in Cleveland, only the busy click of a couple of versatile and volatile typewriters.

Perhaps the Colonel is waiting to do his stuff at the New York convention later in the month. It may be the Democrats' turn.

Sic Transit Gloria

This accounts for all but one of the president-makers of 1920. The missing one is Will H. Hays. Somehow or other, the party seems determined to carry on this year without this little Napoleon of politics. Mr. Hays deserted some three years ago to go in the movies and since that time has been spending most of his busy moments in Hollywood and New York. Between absenting himself from Indiana and not living long enough in the other two places, Mr. Hays got left in the scramble this year and is not among those present or fully accounted for.

Sic transit gloria politicus! Or words to that effect.

Enthusiasm Missing

The usual color, the hurrah, the zip and the boom are missing from this convention. There were no organized boosters, no marching clubs, no torchlight processions. One band blew into town from somewhere on Sunday morning and played a couple of tunes in the rain. Then it seemed to get frightened at its own noise and hurried away to shelter and silence.

The lack of color is due to the fact that there are no candidates. Mr. Coolidge doesn't need any bands or banners. A few of his pictures — small lithographs — adorn the pillars of the hotel lobbies. But that is all. There are no other pictures anywhere—no other candidates with visible means of support. Usually the hotel lobbies at convention time are a veritable picture gallery.

Four dancing elephants, magnificent specimens of the mastodon, are performing at a local vaudeville theatre. Between turns they parade the streets and trumpet in front of the Coolidge headquarters at the Hotel Cleveland.

Convention special trains make strange car-fellows. Coming out from Washington was Senator Jimmie Wadsworth of New York who originally was slated for permanent chairman, and former Representative Frank Mondell of Wyoming, who succeeded to the job.

Shirt Sleeve Stuff

Young "T. R." was on the same train. He carried his own grip through the station at Washington and once aboard the train he "shucked" his coat and went about visiting all evening in his shirt sleeves.

Just as all the visiting newspaper men were remarking that anyway the Democratic convention at New York wouldn't be cool and cut and dried. Tom Love, of Texas, original McAdoo man blew into Cleveland.

"What's all this talk about McAdoo not having enough delegates to win?" he demanded. "Why, it's all over but the shouting. The Democratic convention is going to be just like this one—all fixed up before hand."

The first casualty of the convention occurred at the Hollenden Hotel where the egg boiling broke down under the strain. The delegates had to switch to sunny sides up or scrambled. This doesn't mean there are not plenty of hard boiled in town. Au contraire, as the French would say.

He's Chief!

She said she accompanied the boys on an automobile ride to the south side, where she was forced to leave the car when she resisted advances.

Only one member of the three wealthy families involved was present in the court room. He was Jacob Franks, grief-worn father of the young victim. He sat in the rear of the room, his head bowed, as the young men pleaded to the charges.

BUTLER IS NEW PARTY DICTATOR OF REPUBLICANS

Preconvention Manager to Direct Campaign for Calvin Coolidge

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 11.—William M. Butler, of Massachusetts,—that's all. He is the new dictator of the Republican party. He is the man whose word is law with the assembled delegates. He is the man who dethroned Senator Henry Cabot Lodge. He speaks for Calvin Coolidge—and though he speaks but little, he wields today the power to select a vice-president and to make the platform of the party.

Mr. Butler has been the preconvention manager. For ten months he has been actively gathering delegates, picking them carefully and winning the regular state organizations to his side. He will be the next chairman of the Republican National Committee and the manager of the Coolidge campaign for election.

Some people here think the convention atmosphere unenthusiastic and dull. Some newspaper men accustomed to more excitement, say it is uninteresting. To be sure it isn't spectacular, there is no sign of tension, but it is, on the other hand, a remarkable contrast to 1920.

Little Opposition

Here the Senatorial club has no power, no prominence—Calvin Coolidge rules. The all-important resolutions committee, which frames a platform, has none of Mr. Coolidge's opponents from the Senate and House on it. There will be no embarrassments. Mr. Coolidge has assumed the leadership. His position rather than that of the men who voted to override his vetoes will be supported, his proposals for a world court, his program of legislative reform will be embodied in the platform. And, while he is not trying to pick a vice-president, whoever is selected will be in harmony with his views.

Whence comes this development of Coolidge power? It isn't sudden. It is the result of ten months of intensive campaigning by William M. Butler and his associates. They captured the West and Middle West by a simple appeal to the conservative business interests of the country. The delegates here are business men largely. There are few of the so-called radical types. And the delegates seem to have faith in Calvin Coolidge, faith that in him lies the opportunity for a business revival and a steady course for the ship of state.

Delegates Not Happy

It would be inaccurate to say all the delegates are happy. Some of them are voting for Coolidge against their own wishes. Some of the old leaders who used to take part in the inner conferences are on the outside. Members of Congress who have been snubbed are not joyful about it. The resentment against Congress is the outstanding feature of the convention.

It is the most pronounced in the Massachusetts delegation where every ten minutes someone is talking about punishing Henry Cabot Lodge. Indeed some of the delegates say the feeling in Massachusetts is so bitter against their senior senator that he would be beaten five to one if he ran in a Republican primary today.

Some of the opposition has developed because Mr. Lodge failed to support the president on the soldier bonus issue, some of it because he failed to help the president's proposal on the world court, and some of it because he hasn't functioned as a majority leader and made the fight for Coolidge policies in the affirmative and aggressive fashion. So Mr. Lodge will not help make the platform, will not be in the limelight at all and the friends of the president are eager to have the country know what's going on so that the impression of Coolidge strength and leadership will be broadcast.

Butler Talks Little

William M. Butler is almost as silent as his hero, Calvin Coolidge. In talking with Fred Upham, the national treasurer, Butler speaking of his own reticence said: "Compared to me, Cal Coolidge is a chatterbox." This means that Mr. Butler has been slow to make pledges and promises. There have been no appointments promised, no cabinet portfolios distributed, no commitments of any kind.

The old line leaders look askance and wonder how the money for the campaign is going to be raised if the individual leaders aren't given a little more leeway and they hope that politically speaking, the Coolidge management will loosen up before autumn comes.

Know Political Game

But Mr. Butler is no novice. He learned his politics at the elbow of former Senator Murray Crane of Massachusetts, a skillful master of political strategy. He has converted the Republican convention into something less cumbersome than it was in 1920. It is more cohesive. It is the kind of a convention that aches to be led and controlled. It wants the vice-presidential candidate selected in advance but Mr. Butler is wisely refraining from an insistence on any one candidate.

To the talk of Major General Harbord, Representative Burton, of Ohio, or Senator Capper, of Kansas, he listens but without comment. He would like to see the convention listen to the speeches of nomination and make up its mind on the floor. Frank Lowden's refusal to accept even if tendered has been a disappointment but he is looking to 1928.

Platform Chairman

CHARLES BEECHER WARREN, close personal friend of President Coolidge, and chairman of the resolutions committee of the Republican national convention. His committee drafted the party platform.

MONDELL PLEADS FOR PARTY UNITY

Permanent Chairman Scores Insurgents in Speech at Convention

the stamp of their approval on the candidates of the last Republican national convention by a majority of more than five and a half million. Time and events have abundantly justified that unparalleled endorsement. He who was chosen as the party standard bearer proved his statesmanship in the skillful handling and wise adjustment of important and weighty domestic and international questions and problems.

Trust in Coolidge

"Confidence was the keynote of the sentiment which inspired the nomination of Calvin Coolidge at Chicago four years ago. Confidence in President Coolidge is the outstanding fact in the political situation today, and in the presence of inevitable differences of opinion on questions of moment, this confidence is as fine a compliment to the American people as it is to the president; a spontaneous tribute to sincere faith, high courage and honest and unselfish purpose.

"Never was an administration confronted with more perplexing problems than those of the Republican administration and Congress elected four years ago, and the marvelous record of legislative and administrative accomplishment which followed is without parallel in the annals of government.

Scores Insurgents

"Never before in our history has the need and necessity of dependable party majorities and of definite party responsibility been so clearly demonstrated as in the very recent past. Legislative control by shifting and changing combinations, resulting in majorities having no common faith and recognizing no united responsibility, cannot, in the nature of things, produce legislative results beneficial or satisfactory to the people of the country. The inevitable effect of such legislative control is confusion and paralysis and a legislative product satisfactory to no one.

"Every serious fault of recent legislation and every failure to complete and round out a satisfactory legislative program could and would have been avoided had there been dependable Republican majorities in the Congress. The one certain and assured remedy for such a condition is the election of a Congress, Republican by a goodly majority, both in name and principle.

"This is the open season for weird claim and wild assertion on the part of our friends, the political enemy. Only recently emerged from beneath the political landslide of four years ago, they attempt to appear as confident as they were just before being engulfed in that overwhelming catastrophe.

"In the moments they can spare from their fierce family feuds and rivalries they make a pretense of assuming to believe that they successfully laid down a smoke screen through which their transparent partisan purposes shall not be discovered, and in the contemplation of which all their sins of omission and commission, of discredited policies and discreditable administration, shall be overlooked and forgotten.

"If the American people were prepared to forget—as the Democrats themselves endeavor to do—the wholly indefensible record of the Democratic party in earlier days, they certainly could not overlook the fact that the most recent record of that party is one devoid of a single redeeming feature; of scandalous mismanagement, of unwise and indefensible policy when in control and utter lack of fixed and definite principle or policy, save that of muckraking and obstruction, when in minority.

"A tree is known by its fruit, not by the showy flowers of promise or the occasional defect in bud or branch, but by the normal harvest through the running of the years—and the harvest of the Republican party and leadership is faithfully reflected in the matchless growth and fadeless glory of the Republic."

So no doubt is Herbert Hoover. Mr. Burton of Michigan, who nominates Mr. Coolidge, is said to be a spell-binder. He may [illegible] the vice-presidential nomin[illegible] by oratory. Stranger things have happened.

CHARGE FUNDS OF ESTATE REMOVED

W. S. Mason Held In Jail For Contempt of Court, to Explain Matters

LOS ANGELES, June 11.—W. S. Mason repines in the county jail, having been sentenced to five days' durance by Judge Walton W. Wood yesterday for contempt of court. Also he was ordered to pay a $300 fine and turn over the $65,000 assets of the estate of Mrs. Emma M. Bond, deceased, for whom he held letters of administration until the court saw fit to revoke them.

Mrs. Bond was part owner of the Lenox hotel in Los Angeles when she died. J. J. Bond, her husband, was appointed administrator, but he died, and Mason was substituted. Then W. G. Wilbur, partner in the hotel business, was named executor of Mr. Bond's estate by terms of the will.

Arrest Was Dramatic

Mason, it is alleged, withdrew funds of the estate from Los Angeles banks and took it to Upper Lake, Lake county, where they were placed in a bank, according to his first statements. Later he averred they had been used in a hotel enterprise, but with the burning of the resort last month he found his business ruined and now cannot produce the funds, it is alleged.

His arrest in the north was dramatic, according to James F. McBryde, who is associated with Attorneys Oliver O. Clark and Eugene Wix, all of Glendale, in handling Wilbur's interest in the tangle. It is predicted that Mason will be prosecuted on several charges. The estate hearing comes before Judge Wood tomorrow morning.

NEW FOOD GRAIN IN PHILIPPINES

Adlay, Substitute for Wheat And Rice, Meets With Popular Favor

MANILA, June 11.—Adlay, a new food grain, growing wild in the tropics, and first suggested as a substitute for wheat in the Philippines in 1917, has been introduced in Ceylon and found acceptable as a food, both for humans and animals.

Recent experiments with the grain there show that it yields sixty-nine bushels per acre and a ton of hay in addition. It makes palatable bread products, while the hay is eaten with relish by cattle, which thrive on it.

The Philippine Bureau of Agriculture is making an effort to introduce adlay as a food staple in the Philippines in substitution for rice and wheat.

COOLIDGE FINDS SOLID COMFORT WITH RADIO SET

Nearly Every Evening Spent Listening to Programs Picked from Air

By EDNA MARSHALL
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

WASHINGTON, June 11.—"Silent Cal" Coolidge has found a friend that he can just listen to and to whom he does not have to give even an occasional nod or "Uh-huh" to indicate that he is following.

It's his radio.

Every evening, when he has put aside the cares and duties of his exalted office the president sinks into a cushioned easy chair, dreamily closes his eyes and just listens—while other people talk about the problems he has had to face that day, or refreshes his mind with poetry, music and jests.

Finds Solid Comfort

Just to listen; not even to be obliged to laugh unless the e-mark actually warrants it—that is the presidential idea of solid and perfect comfort. What his jimmy pipe is to the proverbial backwoodsman, what a bit of fishing tackle is to a tired business man on vacation, that and more his radio set is to the occupant of the White House.

Sometimes when the day has not been too hard, and he is in an experimental mood, the president draws his chair close to the magic cabinet and tinkers with its various connections, trying to see what distant point he can pick up. He has "had" most of the United States, including far away Texas. But, owing to his love for systematic progress and a desire to "begin little and end big," the president is said not yet to have taken any ether trips overseas.

The president's set is a powerful one. Perhaps it is the most powerful one in the country, having been specially designed for the White House at the Washington navy yards. He could easily pick up London and other foreign stations. But he insists on hearing America first.

Mrs. Coolidge Is Fan

Already the president's enthusiasm has made Mrs. Coolidge an ardent fan and almost any evening the two might be found at their set in the president's study, exalted but invisible units in the nightly audience of millions of radio fans. Frequently no effort is made to pick up stations outside of Washington, the listeners being content with the programs offered by local stations. Then again they will go out after the long distance points.

Meanwhile, John and Calvin, Jr., have become busy amateurs at school and when they come back to the White House for the summer and get at dad's fine big set they set out to outstrip the president in reaching far away stations. The prseident apparently is looking forward to competition at home, when the boys get on the job, for he has asked the navy department to get him a second set to be placed on the south portico of the White House. He also has had a set installed on board the presidential yacht Mayflower for week-end amusement.

The radio probably will become more than a plaything this week when the Republican national convention is under way at Cleveland to nominate Mr. Coolidge to succeed himself. The president will follow precedent and stay away from the convention city, but his set will keep in constant touch with the proceedings out in the middle west.

Equal Right Is Given Women by Committee

CLEVELAND, June 11.—The Rules committee of the Republican national convention under the chairmanship of Senator Richard P. Ernst of Kentucky, meeting in executive session late yesterday adopted the fifty-fifty rule which places women on an equal status with men in the Republican organization.

COLOR FOR BRIDES

NEW YORK, June 11.—The June bride may, if she desires it, have a touch of color on her wedding gown. The dead white, unbecoming to all complexions, may be relieved by the faintest of pink underslips or train linings.

AUTOMOBILE LOCK

Resembling handcuffs, a new lock to be fastened to an automobile steering wheel prevents a car being moved more than a short distance.

Traffic Cop Gets Finger Pinched By Two Automobiles

LOS ANGELES, June 11.—Arthur Q. Miller, traffic ofifcer on duty at Ninth and Hill streets, this city, can testify today that congestion in Los Angeles is too congested for him. He was holding out his hand, directing traffic when two passing cars pinched one of his fingers. He was treated at the receiving hospital and given the day off.

Committee Accepts Important Planks In G. O. P. Platform

CLEVELAND, June 11.—The resolutions committee of the Republican convention this afternoon accepted most of the important planks reported by the subcommittee in its final draft.

The committee gave its O. K. to the world court plank after Senators Watson of Indiana and Harreld of Oklahoma had offered a clause quoting the language of President Coolidge in his December 6 message concerning divorcing the world court from the League of Nations, and it had been voted down.

The committee also approved the planks on taxation and economy, agriculture and tariff, submitted by the subcommittee.

FINAL DRAFT OF PLATFORM READY

Economy, World Court, Are G. O. P. Leading Issues in Document

Hughes-Coolidge world court proposal.

The men who drew up the platform were Charles B. Warren of Michigan; Lewis H. Smith of Colorado; Frank R. Gooding of Idaho; Representative Martin D. Madden of Illinois; Senator James E. Watson, Indiana; Bert C. Kulp of Kansas; Speaker Frederick Gillett of Massachusetts; Governor Arthur M. Hyde of Missouri; Ogden L. Mills of New York; E. J. Adams of Oregon; William S. Vare of Pennsylvania; Senator Peter Norbeck of South Dakota; R. B. Creager of Texas; Senator Reed Smoot of Utah and Henry W. Anderson of Virginia.

Each plank was written into the platform by a majority vote. Throughout the night the discussion was frequently broken by angry debate. Three of the decisions created a storm of dissension in the committee room. Angry voices floated out into the corridors where a score of newspapermen waited in ceaseless vigil. These were upon agriculture, the adoption of an anti-Ku Klux Klan plank and a decision not to recommend the Mellon plan of tax reductions to the nation.

Point to Saving

Opening their session at 8 o'clock last night, the committee first disposed of the economy features of the platform. This plank pointed out that the Harding-Coolidge administration saved $2,000,000,000 in two years, reduced taxes $1,250,000,000 and the national debt $2,500,000,000. It was adopted joyfully.

An hour later the president's wishes on a world court plank were adopted without dissension. The plank gave hearty endorsement to the Coolidge plan for joining the court, while disavowing any intention of mingling in affairs of the League of Nations.

Oppose Mellon Plan

The first break in harmony came when a proposal was made to endorse the Mellon plan. Instead the committee wrote a plank proposing a commission to study the question of further tax revisions.

As the hours slowly drifted past, an immigration plank without reference to the Japanese exclusion act, a party harmony plank urging election of a regular Republican House and Senate and a plank condemning misfeasance and malfeasance in office, but ignoring specific mention of the Senate scandals, were adopted. Prohibition issues were disposed of with a demand for law enforcement.

Delegates From Middle West Ban Conservative as Vice President

ance to a ticket they consider dominantly eastern in person and spirit.

Hanford MacNider, a delegate-at-large, from Iowa, and formerly national commander of the American Legion, was named temporary chairman.

After discussing their plans behind closed doors, the session broke up, because the hour was approaching for the convention to assemble at the auditorium, and it was announced another session would be held at 3 o'clock.

Reports Are Adopted

It was 11:02 o'clock this morning when the opening gavel fell and the convention opened with the usual national anthem.

The convention speedily adopted the reports from the committees on credentials and permanent organization.

The report of the latter committee produced the first division of the convention—a chorus of "noes" being cast against the committee's decision to seat as delegates two native Porto Ricans, and Robert H. Todd, and deny a seat to E. Mont Reilly, a former governor of Porto Rico. The noes came from Reilly's friends but they were so greatly in the minority that the issue was plain.

guidance in the vice-presidential fight, which, as the day progressed, assumed proportions that were somewhat alarming to party harmony.

They believe that if President Coolidge will simply say this or that man is his choice, the issue will be settled.

The delegates again showed their lack of regard for Wisconsin delegates by rising and applauding vigorously Chairman Mondell's crack at the "insurgents" in the last Congress that prevented President Coolidge from carrying out his program.

Refuse to Stand

As on yesterday, the twenty-eight delegates from the Badger state remained in their seats and only smiled as the delegates shouted, "Stand up, Wisconsin," and yelled at Mondell, "Give it to them."

The convention rose and applauded Mondell when he finished, but the Wisconsin delegates again kept their seats, which resulted in more ribald remarks. The Wisconsin people came here to sit, not to stand and applaud.

Paul Howland of Ohio then presented the report of the committee on rules, which, as expected, contained a unanimous recommendation that women be admitted to full membership on the national committee, and be accorded full equality in the affairs and councils of the party. This represented a clean-cut victory for Republican women, who have consistently striven for such a "fifty-fifty" recognition.

Loud applause greeted the presentation of the report, indicating its approval by the convention.

50-50 for Women

It took Howland until nearly 12:30 to finish the lengthy report of the rules committee, which contained not only the provision giving women "fifty-fifty" representation in the party, but also proposed certain changes in the apportionment of delegates to the convention.

The delegates cheered when Howland read a recommendation that the national committee be empowered to declare vacant the seat of any national committeeman who failed to support the nominee of the party, thinking evidently that this was another thrust at the Wisconsin insurgents, but Howland stopped them by saying, "That's been in every year."

When he finished, the report was adopted unanimously.

EXPERT TELLS OF TITLE INSURANCE

Senator Newton Thompson Addresses Members of Realty Board

Senator Newton W. Thompson of the Title Insurance & Trust company of Los Angeles, one of the admitted authorities on title insurance, was the speaker at today's luncheon of the Glendale Realty board, held in the Presbyterian church, and in his address he went minutely into the various aspects of Real Estate Titles, dealing with the service that the title companies render, the legal restrictions under which these companies work, and the various conditions governing the transfer of titles to land.

Senator Thompson, who was introduced by Charles B. Guthrie, spoke of the manner in which titles to land in this region were conferred by the original Spanish government, by the Mexican government, and by the American government, showing the difference between the present system and the original methods.

The next lecture in the course will be delivered by Thomas W. Watson on June 25, the subject being "Taxation and Local Regulations," and on July 9, W. A. Horn will speak on "The Ethics of the Realty Profession." These two lectures will conclude the course that was originally planned by the educational committee.

Sign Hotel Contract

C. W. Ingledue announced that a contract for the erection of the hotel at the corner of East Broadway and Glendale avenue has been signed, and he asked those members of the board who promised to subscribe for stock in the enterprise to have their payments in the hands of the Pacific Southwest Trust & Savings bank, Glendale avenue branch, by June 25.

The directors of the board, at their meeting today, adopted the following resolution: Resolved, That the Glendale Realty board is opposed to the practice of demanding or accepting exorbitant rates of interest in the form of a bonus for mortgage loans.

The resolution was unanimously adopted by the members of the board when presented by Secretary Jas. W. Pearson.

Vice-President W. L. Twining occupied the chair in the absence of President Peter Hanson.

The realtors will attend the ball game between the Glendale White Sox and the Pacific fleet team on Saturday in a body.

Numbers of savings banks depositors in 1870 was 1,630,846, and at present is 13,000,000.

CREAMERY'S HEAD STAGES BANQUET FOR ASSOCIATES

Calla Lilly Employes and Stockholders Guests of Edward Paggi

Success and prosperity that have marked the second year in the history of the Calla Lilly Creamery, 725 South Porter street, were stressed last night in the happiness of the dinner party given at the Glen Inn, 152 South Brand boulevard, by Edward Paggi, president, for all stockholders and employes of the company and their wives.

An added happiness of the occasion was that yesterday was Mr. Paggi's birthday.

A. L. Thompson, proprietor of the Glen Inn, proved a most gracious host, sparing nothing to make the dinner party a great success. He and his assistants had arranged the dinner tables most artistically.

Table Decorations

Pink and yellow were the colors combined in the decorations, with pink carnations and yellow everlasting used effectively.

The dinner was most tastefully prepared and according to the fifty-seven members of the company, the menu was all that could be desired.

After the dinner hour a group of speakers were presented and all emphasized the success of the Calla Lily company in its two years of organization and predicted greater growth for the future.

As president of the company, Mr. Paggi brought a message of pleasure over the development of the company and appreciation to all who have in any way shared in the success of the two years past.

Birthday Greetings

E. H. Graham, vice president of the company, also spoke, and later Frank Marcotti, a member of the board of directors; H. V. Blackburn, a stockholder; Mrs. H. V. Blackburn, president of the San Fernando Valley Women's club; Don Kerns, retail route foreman; Arthur Read, wholesale route foreman.

On behalf of the company assembled R. L. Garber extended birthday greetings to Mr. Paggi and then presented him with a beautiful set of gold cuff links.

Mr. Paggi, who was greatly surprised and delighted with the gift from his business associates and friends, responded with a fitting speech of thanks.

From the Mexican boundary to the Arctic ocean there is not a species of bird that is not classified, it is claimed.

CORONA, June 11.—Clubwomen of this city are equal to an emergency. When it was learned that delegates to the general federation meeting in Los Angeles would be unable to visit this city on their Orange Empire trip the other afternoon the members of local organizations were dumbfounded as to what to do with the feast of good things they had prepared. So it was that Rotarians, Kiwanians and other men from neighboring towns were invited in for an evening's evening—and the "guests" who did not put in their appearance missed something mighty fine."

SAN PEDRO, June 11.—With more than 800 boats assembled in Los Angeles harbor here today the fishing interests predict that the 1924 tuna season will be the greatest ever. NOT EARTHQUAKE, IT WAS ONLY WAR

Firing of Battle Fleet In Resisting "Enemy" Is Cause of Worry

"Where's the earthquake? How long will it last? Have there been any lives lost?"

These and many other questions poured into the office of The Glendale Evening News shortly before noon today when rumblings and tremors were either heard or thought to have been felt. The local telephone office was swamped with calls, coming from all parts of the city, from Tujunga, where residents reported windows broken; from San Fernando road, and Burbank.

It was not an earthquake, according to the best authorities, it was worse. It was war. The rumblings were caused by the heavy fire of the Pacific fleet ships staging battle practice off the Los Angeles harbor, as they defend the port from the attack of "enemy" submarines, destroyers and airplanes.

Exclusion League Plans Move To Deny Citizenship To Children

SACRAMENTO, June 11.—Legislation denying Japanese born in the United States, citizenship, is the next objective of the California Japanese Exclusion league, Senator J. H. Inman, president of the league, said today.

"We must place a provision in our national constitution providing that no child born in the United States of parents ineligible to citizenship shall become a citizen."

PUPILS PRESENT MUSIC PROGRAM AT SCHOOL MEET

Annual Concert Wins Praise For Teachers In School Institutions

That Glendale school children are receiving talented musical instruction was demonstrated last night in the annual concert presented at the Glendale Avenue Intermediate school by the Glee clubs, orchestras and teachers' choral clubs of the Glendale city schools.

Once more Miss Elsa Brenneman, supervisor, and Miss Mildred E. Hughey, assistant supervisor, and other teachers of music, won justly-deserved compliments on their splendid work.

These annual concerts afford school patrons an opportunity to learn what is going on throughout the year in the music department. The program last night was declared to be one of the best ever given.

Varied Selections

The first part of the program included "Send Out Thy Light" (Gounod), "Indian Tale" (Wright), by the junior orchestra; "Gipsy Song" (Page), "Marching Song" (Mitchell), by boys' glee club from the Wilson Avenue Intermediate school; "Love's Greeting" (Elgar), "True Love Mazurka" (Ascher), by junior orchestra; "I Know a Bank" (Horn), "Water Lilies" (Linders), by girls' glee club of Glendale Avenue Intermediate school; "Minuet in E Flat" (Mozart), "Robin's Farewell" (Arthur), by Intermediate orchestra; "Lievestraum" (Liszt), by Minnie Gustafson, violin; Harold Stancliff, violin, and Marguerite Chappell, piano; "Petite Suite" (Gluck), "March Militaire" (Schubert), by Intermediate orchestra.

The second part was "Pan On a Summer's Day," a cantata with pantomime, written by Pearl Bliss and presented by the Glendale City Teachers' Choral club, assisted by children.

Pageant Characters

Included in the pageant were "At Day Break," John Olson as Pan; "Pan Wakes the World"; "Morning Song," Vera Lockwood, Shirley Whistler, Frances Willard, sunbeams; Jacqueline Estock, dewdrop; Rieta Schrader, Helen McCombs, Johnnie MacReynolds, cobwebs.

"A Summer Shower," Phyllis Wood, Jean Trudow, Martha Warfield, Orvita Markley, Virginia Lloyd, Virginia Weymour, Dorothy Kingler, Mildred Allen, raindrops.

"Noontide Rest By the River," Donald Patterson, Stacy Harshman, Varian Sloane, William Hoffman, Eugene Kelly, James Potts, bees.

Mother of Groom To Hear Wedding Ceremony In N. Y.

LOS ANGELES, June 11.—Sidney Cohen, engaged in the motion picture industry, will marry Rae Lazarus at Hotel Biltmore this afternoon. There is onthing startling about that.

But this evening, in Washington, D. C., Mrs. Cohen, mother of the bridegroom, will hear the ceremony by long-distance telephone and loud-speaker. That is unusual, because the telephoned ceremony is much cheaper than if Mrs. Cohen had made the trip across the country to be present in person.

Permit G. & M. Railway to Cancel $1 Rates

The Glendale & Montrose Railway company has been authorized by the State Railroad commission to cancel the thirty-ride commutation fare of $1 between Glendale and Eagle Rock. P. L. Hatch, manager of the line, announces that this will become effective in about thirty days when a new tariff can be approved by the commission.

A straight one-way rate of 5 cents will be established on the Eagle Rock car line as soon as the new tariff is approved. The $1 commutation rate has been in effect for several years and since the increase in transportation cost, the road has been losing money on every passenger carried at this rate, which amounted to about 3½ cents per trip, according to Mr. Hatch.

ELECT RADKE TO DIRECT AD CLUB

treasurer, in the report of the nominating committee.

Mr. Watson of the Glendale Daily Press, speaking on the amendment assigned as his reason for these nominations the fact that Lon J. Haddock is not a resident of Glendale and that W. A. McCormick is soon to move away from this city. Ed N. Radke, who, as temporary chairman presided over the meeting, concurred with Mr. Watson, stating that the club should not elect men to office who do not live in Glendale.

Cowan's Attitude

Lon J. Haddock resides in Beverly Hills, but has several offices in Glendale. He heads the firm of Haddock-Nibley, realtors and subdividers of the large tract, Rossmoyne, and has been identified with the civic affairs of this city for a matter of years.

A. T. Cowan, publisher and proprietor of The Glendale Evening News, declared that, while personally he could not oppose the election of Ed N. Radke, he felt he could not coincide with the view that Lon J. Haddock was ineligible, as the candidate had been closely identified with Glendale's development and should not be ruled out because his residence happens to be in Beverly Hills.

Radke Is Elected

It was pointed out that Arthur D. Smith, president of the Los Angeles Advertising club, has for years been a resident of Glendale. A. C. Moore, chairman of the nominating committee, read the following telegram from Mr. Haddock in Salt Lake City, in answer to a wire asking if he would accept the presidency of the club:

WILL ACCEPT HONOR AND DO MY DARNDEST.
(Signed)
LON J. HADDOCK.

When the vote was taken, by written ballot, the result put Ed N. Radke in the president's chair by 19 to 12. The following executive committee was then approved: C. J. Hatz, H. N. Fowler, W. H. Daniel, George H. Bentley and an additional member to be appointed at the next meeting.

The meeting opened with a reading by E. B. Blake of the minutes of the meeting of May 27. The minutes were approved as read and Ed N. Radke, who was then acting as temporary chairman, was presented with a baby's bonnet and a rattle for gavel, as a symbol that the Glendale Advertising club was the infant in the advertising family of Southern California.

E. R. Buck, of the Pasadena club, led in the singing of "Yes, We Have No Bananas," with J. H. Casey of the Pasadena club, at the piano. Joe Marshall of the Pasadena club sang "On the Road to Mandalay" and recounted a visit to the land of Kipling's famous poem. Lloyd Casper of the Pasadena club gave a three-minute talk on the recent state convention at Fresno. Mrs. Yates, secretary of the Pasadena club, likewise talked briefly on the Fresno convention.

Following the election of officers, it was felt generally that Ed N. Radke would make an able president of the Glendale Advertising club, as it is known he has long been considered an expert along this line. The meeting adjourned to reconvene Tuesday, June 24.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE AND THE PIECE OF CHEESE

"When you come home this afternoon, please bring a piece of cheese!" called Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy to the rabbit gentleman as he hopped away from his hollow stump bungalow one morning.

"All right," he answered with a twinkle of his pink nose. "Do you want strong, jumpy, snappy cheese, Nurse Jane, or a nice, gentle, go to sleep sort of cheese?"

"I don't see that it makes much difference," spoke the muskrat lady housekeeper, tying her tail in a double bow knot, for she was going to knock some of the dust from the furniture on the floor.

"Of course, it makes a difference!" laughed the bunny. "If I bought a strong, jumpy, spicy piece of cheese it could come home all by itself, but if I get a mild, gentlemanly slice I'll have to carry it."

"You'd better get a piece of mild cheese," said Nurse Jane, laughing.

"You'd better get a piece of mild cheese," said Nurse Jane, laughing.

Uncle Wiggily promised that he would, and off he started hopping through the woods to find an adventure, for Uncle Wiggily was rich and didn't have to work, as do most rabbits. All he did was to look for adventures and help those whom he found in trouble.

After looking about for some time and not finding any adventures, the rabbit gentleman hopped to the cheese store and bought a nice, kind, mild slice for Nurse Jane. This he put in his pocket and once more he hopped along through the woods.

Uncle Wiggily had not gone very far when, all of a sudden, something big and heavy dropped on him out of a sassafras tree.

"Hello! Is this another Snapper Bug?" cried the rabbit, for he remembered that one of these insects had dropped on him the day before. But this was something much larger than a bug, for it had smashed Uncle Wiggily's hat down over his eyes so he couldn't see.

"Ah! Now I have you! At last I've caught you!" snarled a most unpleasant voice, and Uncle Wiggily felt himself being dragged along.

"Who are you?" cried the bunny.

"I'm the Bob Cat and I've caught you," mewed the bad chap. "I'm going to take you off to my den and tie you to a post with my wife's clothes line. Then I'm going to get the Fox and we two shall nibble your ears."

Uncle Wiggily tried to hold back, but he couldn't see what he was doing because his hat was crushed down over his eyes. He felt himself being pulled through the woods. Then, a little later, he felt himself being tied to a post with coil after coil of strong rope. His paws were bound to his side so he couldn't move. And the Bob Cat tied a handkerchief over the bunny's mouth so he couldn't call for help. And his hat was still jammed down over his eyes so he couldn't see.

"Now you'll stay here until I come back with the Fox!" snapped the Bob Cat as he ran out of the cave.

Left all alone, tied up in the dark Uncle Wiggily felt very sad. He wiggled and squirmed and tried to get loose, but the rope held him fast.

"At last I fear I am going to have my ears nibbled!" he thought. "Oh, dear!"

A little while after this two tiny creatures crept along through the woods. They had long tails—in fact, their name was Longtail. They were Jollie and Jillie, the mouse boy and girl, and they were coming home from school.

"Oh, Jillie!" suddenly cried Jollie, as he stopped near the den of the Bob Cat, though the mouse boy didn't know it was there. "I smell the loveliest cheese!"

"Uh! I smell cheese myself," squeaked Jillie. "It seems to be in this hole. Let's go in and nibble a bit."

Now the hole was not the front door, but a small one leading into the Bob Cat's cave. The cheese the mice children smelled was in Uncle Wiggily's pocket, and the bunny was tied in the bad chap's cave. His eyes were blinded by his hat. He couldn't call for help because of the handkerchief over his mouth, but he could hear the mice children talking and he heard them creeping into the cave through the little hole. Nearer and nearer they came to the smell of the cheese. And then, being well able to see in the dark, Jollie and Jillie noticed Uncle Wiggily tied to the post.

"Oh, poor Uncle Wiggily!" squeaked Jollie. "We must gnaw the ropes and set him free, Jillie."

"Of course we must," said the sister mouse. "Never mind about the cheese now." So the mice children gnawed through the ropes that bound the bunny just as, in the story the mouse gnawed the ropes of the net and set the lion free.

Soon Uncle Wiggily's paws were loosed. He pulled his hat up off his eyes, took the handkerchief from his mouth and, with the mice, ran out of the Bob Cat's cave.

"Thank you so much for saving me!" said Uncle Wiggily. "And here is some cheese for you. It's a good thing I had it in my pocket or you never would have smelled it and come in to save me."

"Oh, poor Uncle Wiggily!" squeaked Jollie.

The mice children liked the cheese very much. Uncle Wiggily hopped home with them, and, oh! how angry the Bob Cat was when he came back with the Fox and found the rabbit gone! Oh! he was so angry!

But it served the bad chaps right, I think. And if the kitchen table doesn't jump over the electric light and burn its legs, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily cutting the grass.

Wins One Dollar Damages

Jury awards EDWARD A. OPFERGELT that amount in his suit against DR. JOHN T. BOLIN (right), whom he accused of stealing his wife, shown in the center.

CHICAGO, June 11.—The love of his wife is worth just one hundred cents to Edward A. Opfergelt of Chicago. At least that is the valuation placed on it by the jury which tried his suit against Dr. John T. Bolin, whom he charged with stealing her affections.

Opfergelt charged in court that his wife, a former nurse, was often an honored guest in a love nest maintained by Dr. Bolin. This the doctor denied.

An exhibit in the case was a letter declared by the plaintiff to have been written by Mrs. Opfergelt:

"If Junior only looks like you so I can put him in your arms and say, 'Dear one, here is our son, yours and mine,' would that make you happy?"

From Book Of Life

ARE THE INTELLECTUAL SCIENCES ADVANCING?

IT SEEMED TO BACON—Francis Bacon, one of the greatest of all English minds—that men do not rightly understand either their store or their strength, but overrate the one, and underraate the other.

"Hence it follows," he contends in the preface to the "Instauratio Magna," "that either from an extravagant estimate of the value of the arts which they possess, they seek no further or else from too mean an estimate of their own powers, they spend their strength in small matters and never put it fairly to the trial in those which go to the main. These are as pillars set in the path of knowledge; for men have neither desire nor hope to encourage them to penetrate further.

"And since opinion of store is one of the chief causes of want, and satisfaction with the present induces neglect of provision for the future, it becomes a thing not only useful but absolutely necessary, that the excess of honor and admiration with which our existing stock of inventions is regarded to be in the very entrance and threshold of the work, and that frankly and without circumlocution, stripped off, and men be duly warned not to exaggerate or make too much of them.

"For, let a man look carefully into all that variety of books with which the arts and sciences abound, he will find everywhere endless repetitions of the same thing, varying in the method of treatment, but not new in substance, insomuch as the whole stock, numerous as it appears to be at first views, proves on examination to be but scanty. And for its value and utility it must be plainly avowed that that wisdom which we have derived principally from the Greeks is but like the boyhood of knowledge, and has the characteristic property of boys; it can talk but it cannot generate; for it is fruitful of controversies but barren of works."

The theme Bacon hymns is that the state of knowledge is not prosperous nor greatly advancing; and that a way must be opened for the human understanding entirely different from any hitherto known, and other helps provided, in order that the mind may exercise over the nature of things that properly belong to it. Is this true today?

"If science of this kind [intellectual sciences, as distinguished from mechanical sciences] had any life in them, that could never have come to pass which has been the case now for many years—that they stand almost at a stay, without receiving any argumentations worthy of the human race; insomuch that many times not only what was asserted once is asserted still, but what was a question once is a question still, and instead of being resolved by discussion is only fixed and fed; and all the tradition and succession of schools is still a succession of masters and scholars, not of inventors and those who bring to further perfection the things invented." Bacon wrote this in the latter part of the sixteenth century, but men are saying the same hting today.

In the mechanical arts Bacon did not find it so; he saw them as having in them the breath of life, and continually growing and becoming more perfect. "As originally invented they are commonly crude, clumsy, and shapeless; afterwards they acquire new powers and more commodious arrangements and constructions; and in them men shall sooner leave the study and pursuit of them and and turn to something else, then they arrive at the ultimate perfection of which they are capable."

"Philosophy and the intellectual sciences, on the contrary, stand like statues, worshiped and celebrated, but not moved or advanced. Nay, they sometimes flourish most in the hands of the first author, and afterwards degenerate.

"For, when men have once made over their judgments to others' keeping, and have agreed to support some one person's opinion, from that time they make no enlargement of the sciences themselves, but fall to the servile office of embellishing certain individual authors and increasing their retinue.

"And let it not be said that the sciences have been growing gradually till they have at last reached their full stature, and so (their course being completed) have settled in the works of a few writers; and that there being now no room for the invention of better, all that remains is to embellish and cultivate those things which have been invented already. Would that it were so!"

Daily News Letter

General News and Gossip from Staff Writers at Home and Abroad

By DAVID M. CHURCH
For International News Service.

LONDON, June 11.—Great Britain must eventually give India dominion status, according to the opinion of the Maharajah of Rajapipla, a ruling Prince of India, who is now visiting London.

Tall and lithe, the Maharajah might easily have been mistaken for a well-tanned Englishman, as he sat in his suite in the Savoy hotel; but the servants, who surrounded him like a court, wert in flowing white robes and dispelled any doubts.

The Maharajah pointed out that, as a ruling prince, he was not directly interested in the independence of India, but he showed in his conversation that he has made it his business to attempt to feel the pulse of the 1,200,000 people over whom he rules.

"I owe allegiance to Britain and to the British throne," he said, "and I certainly take what I call an intelligent view of the whole situation in my counry.

"The agitations which periodically occur do not alarm me in any way. They are simply an after effect of the war. They have agitation in England.

"There are so many castes and religions and opinions among the natives that it is difficult to ascertain what they really do want, and there are very few groups that can be found to agree with each other.

"As a native prince, I can see perfectly well that if India's good is to be studied, a firm and sympathetic policy must be entered upon and carried out by the British government. It must set out a definite line and stick to it. It must not allow itself to be swayed by any little group that desires to have its wants attended to in preference to the rest of the state.

"We must always have at the head of affairs in India someone who knows the country and the people thoroughly—someone who is sympathetic and who has lived almost a lifetime there, and who can enter into the minds of the native, and not be prejudiced by his ideas of how things are done at home.

"India is becoming better educated, but still only a very small minority of the people can be classed as well read. The majority are quite content to go on as their forefathers have gone, and they are not really interested in political affairs. If they were asked whether they desired dominion status, or to stay as they are, they would, in 99 cases out of 100, say, Please yourself; we don't care'."

The Maharajah expressed the opinion, however, that eventually India must achieve dominion status.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D.
Author of Diet and Health, with Key to the Caolries

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

Mrs. S.—It is possible that if you reduce, your desire for a baby may be gratified. Many of our childless overweight followers who were desirous of having children are now asking for instructions for the care of their babies. Eat a lot of vitamin-bearing foods, especially lettuce. Some investigators believe it has an anti-sterility vitamin.

While many rheumatic pains can be traced to the overeating which causes overweight and auto-intoxication, acute inflammatory rheumatism is a germ infection, usually gaining access to the system through a severe case of tonsilitis. The germs are microscopic plants, and, as is the case with all plants, the soil must be suitable for them to grow in. There is no doubt that overeating and undereating, and other unhygienic habits, tend to make the tissues better soil for these growths. However, so few of us are physically perfect, it behooves us to fight this disease-germ life, by supporting our health departments in enforcing quarantine and food inspection laws and other measures to promote sanitation.

Mrs. G.—It is normal for the breasts to feel slightly sore and painful before the menstrual period.

J.—Yes, occasionally the tonsils and adenoid tissues will grow back after an operation. This is because this tissue grows from the mucous membrane, and, of course, all the mucous membrane cannot be removed. It does not happen often, though. If they go to the extent of causing obstruction and chronic inflammation again, they can be removed a second time.

L.—See a skin specialist about the birthmark. He will tell you if it can be removed. There have been marked advances in the treatment of birthmarks in recent years.

Mrs. E. J.—You say you are ashamed to look a scale in the face, you are so much overweight. Send for our instructions on reducing, and watch the column. Very frequently you'll find advice on reducing therein.

R.—So your legs are plain shanks, are they? And you are not thin otherwise. Looks as though you would have to do something to develop your muscles. How about walking, dancing, kicking, and the like? That is all I can think of, aside from padding, and that is difficult, I imagine.

Mrs. D.—A solution which is good for smelly and sweaty feet is: One ounce of formalin to one quart of water. Rub a little of this solution on each foot, after first washing and drying. At first, do this every day; afterward, once or twice a week.

Mrs. T.—You say you are five feet five inches tall, and weigh 210 pounds; that your limbs swell and you suffer severely with eczema. You sent for the pamphlet on reducing.

If you will follow the pamphlet's instructions, I believe all of your troubles will disappear. For five feet five inches, in your stocking feet, you should weigh 140 pounds. At 210, you are at least 70 pounds too heavy. That's terrible! No wonder you have eczema and swollen legs.

Eczema, many times, is due to food poisoning, especially the protein (meat element) in foods. All foods, even vegetable foods, have some proportion of this protein in them. Certain meats, especially veal and pork, seem to be especially irritating. It is often found that the egg protein (the white of the egg) is the offender. Sometimes certain cereals and potatoes have been found to be the offenders.

Laboratories are now giving protein tests to determine which protein is the culprit. It is found that babies are most often eczematous when they are over-fat, and the same thing applies to adults. Occasionally, under-nourished children have eczema and then it is very difficult to get rid of it until they are brought to normal weight.

Did you enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope when you requested the pamphlet on reducing? If not, try again, because I have so many hundreds of letters that the office has rules not to send any material unless the s. a. s. e. is enclosed.

Tomorrow—Answers to Correspondents.

My Dear Followers:—When sending for material which we offer you please remember to enclose a stamped envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose four cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, not over 200 words, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible, if they are of general interest. Don't forget the s. a. s. e. if you expect me to send you the information I have offered.

Women At Convention

Some of the women much in the limelight in Republican affairs—Above (left to right) Mrs. Lindsey Patterson, Winston-Salem, N. C.; Mrs. Corinne Roosevelt Robinson, New York, sister of the late Theodore Roosevelt; Mrs. George Orvis, mayor of Manchester, Vt.; Center: Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, Ohio, vice chairman of the national committee (left); Mrs. Emily W. Dean, only woman delegate-at-large from Illinois. Below (left to right) Mrs. Louise M. Dodson, Des Moines, Iowa, national chairman of field activities for the women's national committee; Mrs. Barclay H. Warburton of Philadelphia; Mrs. Nettie M. Clapp, Cleveland, chairman of the women's committee in charge of the arrangements for the convention.

Although only one-tenth of the delegates in the Republican national convention in Cleveland are women, the women are taking an enormously greater part in the conclave than they did at Chicago in 1920, when there were only twenty-seven delegates, as compared with the more than 100 women delegates and 200 alternates in the present gathering. The total number of delegates to the convention is 1,109.

Only six states will not have a woman delegate in the Cleveland conclave. These are nearly all in the south, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, South Carolina, and South Dakota. The latter state has one woman alternate.

Beauty Chats

By EDNA KENT FORBES

AN UGLY CHIN

A chin may be hopelessly ugly because it is badly formed, or it may be ugly simply because it is not properly cared for. Blackheads, large pores, or unnecessary hairs will spoil the most beautifully formed chin in the world. Not even a Venus could survive the disfigurements of carelessness!

If your chin is ugly you have a long job ahead of you. The first thing to do is to hold very hot wet cloths over that part of the face until the pores are open. This will take from two to five minutes. Then a good quality cleansing cream should be rubbed in thoroughly. The chin will stand a great deal of vigorous rubbing. This should be wiped off with the same cloth once more wrung from very hot water. By doing this you have opened the pores once more and released the combination of cream and dirt which they have been holding.

Very bad blackheads can be squeezed out now, either by using one of the little instruments that come for the purpose, or by using your two forefingers with a clean handkerchief wrapped around them. Unless the blackheads are very large and very prominent, I shouldn't advise this troublesome process, for this vigorous cleansing treatment will rid you of all the smaller ones.

Do this every other day. On alternate days steam the chin as before and rub, in, not cold cream, but finely powdered oatmeal which you can buy at drug stores. Wet the tips of the fingers, dip in the powder and rub the resulting paste thoroughly into the skin. It will take up more than you expect. Then rinse with hot water and finally with cold water. The cold cream treatment must be followed by a cold rinse also. Superfluous hairs should not be pulled out at this time. When you do pull them use tweezers and make the skin antiseptic by using peroxide.

Mrs. B. M.:—A cream made from almond oil is best for the face, or just plain almond oil of the best quality. You can also use either on the arms, but olive oil of any grade will serve this purpose.

Alyce:—Short hair will need to be shampooed oftener than long hair, but once in ten days should be enough. If your hair gets too oily use towels on it just as if you were drying it after a shampoo.

Either shave or use a depilatory for removing the hair under the arms.

Red Rose:—If you eat very much meat, it might cause your red skin. If that is not the case, consult the doctor.

Are There Blackheads Around the Chin?

Heart and Home

By MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been married five years and am 21 years old. I love my husband very dearly, but he doesn't return my love. About two years ago he met one of his old girls and she got to telling him what a hard time she was having in her home and how badly her husband treated her, and so he planned to run away with her. I discovered the fact and prevented it, and so then he told me he and she had quit. I knew they lied to me, but I just kept still and watched. My husband is going to leave now. He is going to hunt a place to start a business for himself. He tells me he will either send for me or come after me, but I know he is lying again, for I found a letter the other day that he had written to this woman and he said he wanted her to come and live near him until they could get a divorce and he would support her. God never saw fit to make me a mother, and that is all he has against me, but he is always throwing that in my face. He thinks he can use that to get a divorce. Do you think he can. What would you do if you were in my place? Don't say to divorce him because I won't do it. If his parents were to find out what he is doing it would kill them, for they love me as an own daughter, and they hate this other woman, for she is of rather a low class. Please give me your advice.

VERY UNHAPPY WIFE.

Since you feel you cannot divorce your husband, the best thing for you to do is to remain loyal and wait until the time comes when he tires of the other woman and is glad to return. You probably will find that after he has been with the other woman a little more he will turn back to you. In some states a man can get a divorce because his wife does not bear children. I would advise you to consult a good physician at once because he probably can do something for you that will correct your trouble.

WIDOW'S LOVE PROBLEM

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am an American widow of fourteen months and have no children. I met a man of another nationality through a friend of mine who is married to his friend. This man has asked me to marry him. Would I be doing something sinful to get married to another nationality or would I be doing right? I am alone in the world. I know he thinks a lot of me and I do of him. As soon as his day's work is done he either calls me up on the phone or comes to see me. Some people tell me that he is a good man, but may not always be the same to me. He has his own home and everything nice. I am not one of the kind that goes to dances and shows. I love a home, and ever since I was left alone I have had to work very hard to make my way and have not had a home. Please advise me. MRS. DIMPLES.

Every nation has its good men, and America cannot claim all of them by any means. The fact that the man is of a different nationality would make little difference in your happiness if you are well suited to each other and he is the kind of person to be a good and faithful husband. Take time in making your decision, because if you marry hastily you may regret it, while on the other hand, time may prove to you that you and he are well suited to each other and would be very happy together. After an acquaintance of several months or a year you ought to be able to decide fairly well what kind of character he has.

Many housekeepers can lima and string beans by the One Period Cold Pack method with perfect success. But to be absolutely sure of success, one should use the Intermittent Cold Pack method.

Prepare the beans for immediate serving when taken from the can; that is, shell lima beans and cut string beans in short lengths as for the table. Put them in a cheesecloth bag and plunge into a boiling soda-bath (use one teaspoon of baking soda to one gallon of water). Let remain in this soda-bath for three minutes if the beans are young and tender, otherwise for five minutes. Then remove bag from the bath and plunge at once into a cold mild brine made by using one tablespoon of salt for every quart of water. Leave in this brine for only 30 seconds, then remove, drain and pack the beans in hot, sterilized glass jars.

By "sterilized glass jars" I mean jars which have been placed on their sides in cold water, brought to the boiling point, and allowed to remain in this boiling water for 15 minutes; drain and keep hot by wrapping in towels wrung out of boiling water. Jars not kept hot in this way may crack when hot water is put into them with the vegetables.

When you have packed the beans in the jar, fill the jar to within one-half inch of top with a boiling-hot fresh brine made by adding two and one-half ounces of salt to every gallon of boiling water used. Put on new rubbers, sterilized glass caps, and put top wire up over cap but do not press down side wire; this is called "partially sealing" the jar. Now stand the jar on a rack or a thickly-folded cloth in your washboiler in boiling-hot water which rises about an inch over jar-tops. Watch the water and make a note of the exact minute when it begins to boil again after the jars are in it.

The water must boil around the jars for just one hour, then the jars must be taken out, completely soaked, and stood in ordinary room-temperature over night. In the morning they must be partially sealed (that is, the side wire must be pushed up) and the jars returned to the canner, as before, for another hour of boiling; remove from canner, completely seal, and let stand in room-temperature over night. On the third morning again release the side wire, put jars back in canner for an hour, remove, and completely seal. The canning is now finished. (In all, the jars have been "processed" in the boiling water for three hours—one hour on each of three days). Label and store.

Tomorrow—The Choice of a Clothesline.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman, in care of the "Efficient Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. Be sure to use YOUR full name, street number, and the name of your city and state.—The Editor.

By AL DIX,
Of The Evening News Staff.

There they are, folks. Sixteen of 'em. Count 'em. Sixteen straight victories without a defeat at the hands of any semi-pro team in southern California.

That's the Glendale White Sox, owned by Frank Kerwin and managed by Carl Sawyer, former Washington infielder and known throughout the entire Coast league circuit for his antics on the diamond as well as his ability to sock the apple for a row of sauerkraut barrels.

Starting on Washington's birthday, which is a good patriotic day to undertake any record breaking stunts, the White Sox have waded through the best teams in this country. Four times have the Pasadena Merchants fallen before the Sox, while Jasper Washington's colored proteges have been conquered five times, three times as the St. Louis Giants and twice as the All-Stars.

Breaks All Records

In establishing this record the White Sox have broken all semi-pro records, and have taken a place in the southern California baseball firmament right along with Los Angeles and Vernon of the Coast league. Los Angeles newspapers feature the White Sox every Monday morning with a banner lead on the sporting page.

Of course Sawyer's crew cannot go on winning indefinitely, much as they would like to. They have two hard games scheduled for this week-end. The U. S. S. New Mexico team, champions of the Pacific Fleet, plays here Saturday as the attraction for the big baseball booster day being arranged, and on Sunday there is a regular summer league game with the Pacific Electric players.

Tickets Selling Fast

Five thousand tickets were printed for Saturday's game, and R. E. Johnston, know as "Slim" to all baseball fans, who gave an exhibition of his pitching arm some time ago, who is supervising the selling campaign, states they are going well, and predicts an overflow crowd for next Sunday.

A flock of tickets has been sent to the Pacific Fleet and a large turnout of gobs is expected, as the fame of the White Sox has traveled that far.

For those who do not attend the regular Sunday games, next Saturday will be their only chance to witness the champion Glendale team in action. The game is being boosted by the merchants of the city as an advertising proposition, and if the team is to stay in Glendale, more support will have to be given, state those working to make Baseball Day a success.

FOR GAME'S SAKE

By LAWRENCE PERRY,
Special Correspondent of The Evening News, Copyright, 1924

CHICAGO, June 11.—Weather conditions that prevailed in the course of the Western conference track meet at Stagg field were even less favorable than those obtaining at Cambridge at the I. C. A. A. games because of the raw, chilling winds which Lake Michigan wafted over this city.

There was wind, plenty of it, cavorting about the Harvard stadium, but at least the sun was shining, whereas in Chicago the poetically minded with all poetic fervor could ask what is so raw as a day in June. This being so, world's record and two conference records were shattered.

With both the great eastern and western track and field bodies suffering from adverse elemental conditions comparisons of the various times made and distances achieved cannot be very accurate, but they are herewith presented for what they are worth for the benefit of those who set great store by the watch and the tape measure and are likely to overlook the atmosphere and the human equation.

Of the fifteen events, then, the athletes competing in the I. C. A. A. A. A. meet at the Harvard stadium excelled in eight events and the western conference meet athletes in seven. Each set of athletes east and west excelled in four track events, while the I. C. A. A. A. A. won in five of the field events and the big ten athletes in three.

For the conference Dehart Hubbard of Michigan won the century in 9 4-5. Evans of Illinois won the 220-yard dash in 21 3-5 seconds.

I. C. A. A. A. A. times for the 100 and 220 yard dashes were 10 seconds and 21 9-10 seconds, respectively.

Easterners did better in the 440, 880, mile and two miles as follows: Helffrich, Penn State, 50 1-10 in the quarter, against 50 2-5 in the conference meet. Watters, Harvard, 1:55 8-10 in the half, against 1:57 in the big ten games. Enck, Penn State, 4:23 8-10 in the mile, against 4:26 4-5 in the conference meet. Booth, Johns Hopkins, 9:36 in the two miles, against the conference showing of 9:43.

In the two hurdles, conference athletes excelled, viz: Kinsey, Illinois, 15 seconds in the 120 hurdlers, against 15 2-15 at the I. C. A. A. A. A. meet. Brookins of Iowa, 23 4-5 in the 220 low hurdles, against 24 5-10 in the east. Brookins, by the way, established a new American record.

In the field events, Hubbard of Michigan did the running broad jump at 24 feet 10 3-4 inches. The eastern distance was 24 feet 8 inches. In the high jump, Campbell of Minnesota and Smith of Michigan were tied at 6 feet 3 inches. The eastern meet turned in 6 feet 2 5-8 inches. The other field event won by the west was the javelin, Schildhauer of Illinois doing 193 feet, against 192 in the east.

Hartranft of Stanford won the 16-pound shotput in the east with 49 feet 5 7-8 inches. The west showed 43 feet 4 3-4 inches. Hartranft also won the discus at 158 feet 8 inches, against 137 feet 4 3-4 inches at Stagg field. Owens of Penn won the pole vault at 12 feet 10 1-4 inches, against 12 feet 10 inches in the west. Drew of Massachusetts Tech won the 16-pound hammer throw at 156 feet 1-4 inch, against 142 feet 5 3-4 inches at Chicago.

HERMAN WINS BIG BOUT AT VERNON

Johnny Lamar Added to Long String of Conquered Ring Battlers

The fight fans were evidently suffering from a reaction resulting from the Dempsey fuss last week, and a very small crowd turned out to see Babe Herman whip Johnny Lamar in the main event at Jack Doyle's Vernon arena last night. Herman was not up to his usual standard, but had too much stuff for Lamar.

Eddie McGovern was given the decision over George Manley in the semi-windup. Manley had the last round, but did not start his punishment early enough.

Other results: Mickey Rockson gained a verdict over Nick Newman of Kansas City in a slow bout; Ruby Lavigne beat Mike Solano; Billy Alger knocked out Benny Kilroy in the first round; Manny Kaplan knocked out Jack Doran in the fourth; Joe Burns got the nod over Champ Munroe.

Joe Benjamin and Dode Bercot fight the main event next week, with Young Nationalista and George Rivers on the same bill.

Angels Get Two Home Runs Off Geary In Seventh, And Score Six

By BEN McGUIRE
For Southland News Service.

LOS ANGELES, June 11.—The Angels regained their batting form in the seventh inning of yesterday's game with the San Francisco Seals, hammering Geary for two home runs and two singles, and scored six runs before he was able to check the slaughter, and winning the first game of the series, 8 to 2.

Geary pitched air-tight ball up to the sixth, allowing the Angels only one hit and a pair of walks. Ote Crandall was very ineffective in the first inning, when the Seals nicked him for three singles, but he forced the next three batters to pop out to the infield.

The Seals scored their first run in the third, when Ote walked Kelly, Mulligan singled and Doc hit Warner, filling the sacks. Ellison then hit a sacrifice fly, Kelly scoring. The Angels tied the count in the sixth, when Geary could not find the plate and forced a runner home.

TIGERS 4, OAKS 2

OAKLAND, June 11. — The Tigers won a thirteen-inning game from the Oaks here yesterday to open the week's series. The score was 4 to 2.

"Pinches" Kunz lived up to his name and struck out nine of Bill Essick's hirelings, and deserved a better fate than he received, but weak support by Cather and Adams resulted in his downfall.

Christian was hit hard at times but managed to weather the storm, although a fast double play in the ninth cut off what looked like the winning rally.

Gordon Slade broke into the game at shortstop after being benched for a month, and played sensational ball. He handled nine chances in the field without a bobble and nicked Kunz for three hits out of six times at bat.

SACRAMENTO, June 11.—Despite the herculean efforts of "Lefty" O'Doul, who pitched his durndest for eleven innings and put his team back in the game three times with that number of hits, he was beaten in eleven innings yesterday by Bill Hughes, 4 to 3. One of his hits tied the score in the seventh and all but won the game in the tenth. It was a hard game for him to lose.

PORTLAND, June 11.—The Beavers made a desperate bid for yesterday's game after being held scoreless for six innings, but fell one run short of the needed total. Percy Lee Jones, Indian southpaw, struck out eleven batters and had the Beavers under perfect control up to the eighth inning. A wild rally netted four runs in that frame, and in the ninth Portland got three men on with none out. Jones was chased and Stueland came to the rescue. He managed to retire the side with only one run being scored.

TEX MAY LAY OFF WILLS-FIRPO BOUT

Promoter Keeps Silent on Question, But Drawing Power Diminished

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 11.—Conflicting reports on Tex Rickard's intentions towards a Wills-Firpo bout in August were in circulation along Broadway today, several men close to the promoter giving widely divergent views as to his attitude toward Harry Wills' indifferent showing against Bartley Madden on Monday night. One man maintained that Rickard intended to wait 24 hours longer to get the final and complete reaction of the newspapers and the public on Wills status; if the reaction is adverse Rickard will drop the Wills-Firpo romp like a soiled handkerchief.

Other stories were to the effect that the promoter planned to go through with the business, but would insist on a generous cut of the guarantees named. He is said to have quoted Firpo at $240,000 and Wills at $175,000 when the frolic looked like a million dollar proposition.

Rickard himself has said nothing beyond the remark that Wills had injured his drawing power in the Madden affair. This would seem to indicate that he planned to perform a major operation on the colored man's guarantee, if he can get away with it. The writer sees no good reason why he cannot. If Wills, for instance, was cut to $100,000 for the occasion in question, it would be more money than he ever saw at one and the same time, and box fighters are not exactly inimical to money.

DOPE FROM DUGOUT

By JOHN B. FOSTER
Special Correspondent of The Evening News, Copyright, 1924

NEW YORK, June 11.—The eastern clubs of the American league in their first invasion of the West, are struggling hard to upset the 1924 theory that the West, speaking collectively, is stronger than the East.

Of the first fourteen games played, the eastern clubs won nine and lost only four, thereby proving that sometimes, at least, they could do as well abroad as at home. But they dropped six of the next eight, making a total of eleven won and eleven lost. The Washington club had a lot to do with the result of this first series of clashes. The way they sailed into the Tigers was a caution. The start of their trip was reminiscent of one of their little journeys last season, when they scorched everything in sight. But they apparently struck a snag when they moved on to Cleveland, where they dropped the first two straight to Speaker's Indians.

The improvement in the Washington team dates from the acquisition of Matthews. The inspiration, even if only temporary, shows what there is to Washington if stability and a slugger were always on tap.

The Boston Americans were so good on their start at St. Louis that they had the natives ready to buy their heavy overcoats for the world series. Then Ehmke was put into pitch and failed to win. The Boston club came back in their first game with Chicago, but fell by the wayside again in the second. The Yanks held their edge at their first port of call in Chicago. But moving on to St. Louis, they dropped two straight which brought them again to a tie with the Boston club.

There was precious little opportunity to see what the National league western clubs could do in the East on their first round. It rained too much. Cincinnati did far better against Boston than the Reds did against that team on their own field in May, when they permitted the Braves to take a series of four. They, by the way may yet prove the most costly series that the Reds have lost this year.

The Phillies cleaned up St. Louis, which seems to have encountered one of its sour spells again, but the Brooklyns against Pittsburgh and the Cubs against the Giants were more or less drowned out. There wasn't enough in the total to give dependable results in figuring under the law of average.

There has been nothing however, that could be looked upon as having jarred the Giants much. They care very little how often the Phillies defeat St. Louis and how many times Brooklyn is able to win from Pittsburgh, because that all works out well for the Giants so long as they are keeping on winning.

The Giants have great recuperative power and until that is killed off they will be in the rush for the pennant.

Greater New York will house 28,765,000 persons in 2000 A. D., gay estimators.

LOCAL NET STARS IN FINAL MATCH

Winners of Today's Meet at High School Will Get League Pennant

The tennis match for the championship of the Central High School league is being played this afternoon on the courts at the old Harvard High school, between the Glendale and Alhambra net artists.

The locals have won every match that has been played, 17-0. Bob Laird, first man, and Wayne Maxwell, second man, are rated as two of the best juniors in southern California. Llewellyn White, third man, and Lee Osborne, fourth, are good, steady players, who always win their matches.

The Moors have a strong outfit, and should give the Dynamiters a tough battle. Although Rodney, Houser and Behlow, first and second men, respectively of the Alhambra crew, were expelled two weeks ago from all further athletic activities, it is expected that they will be in today's match. The Moors have gone through their part of the schedule with the loss of only three points, those to Covina.

Wayne Maxwell, Glendale second man, recently defeated Houser, and, even if the latter does play, he will probably be beaten by Laird of Glendale. The locals won the pennant last year, and are going to put up a hard fight for this year's banner.

SIGNS BIGBEE TO HURL FOR LOCALS

Kerwin Gets Pitcher's Name On Dotted Line for Rest of Season

Lyle Bigbee, former Angel hurler, has been signed by Frank Kerwin to pitch for the Glendale White Sox the rest of the summer season. Bigbee had several offers to go east but preferred to remain in California.

He made his first appearance in Sox uniform against the Pasadena Merchants last Sunday and held them scoreless for eight innings. He has more "stuff" than any twirler who has been on the mound for Glendale, and the outlook for a continued winning streak is very bright.

Bigbee was a star on Hugo Bezdek's champion University of Oregon football team in 1917.

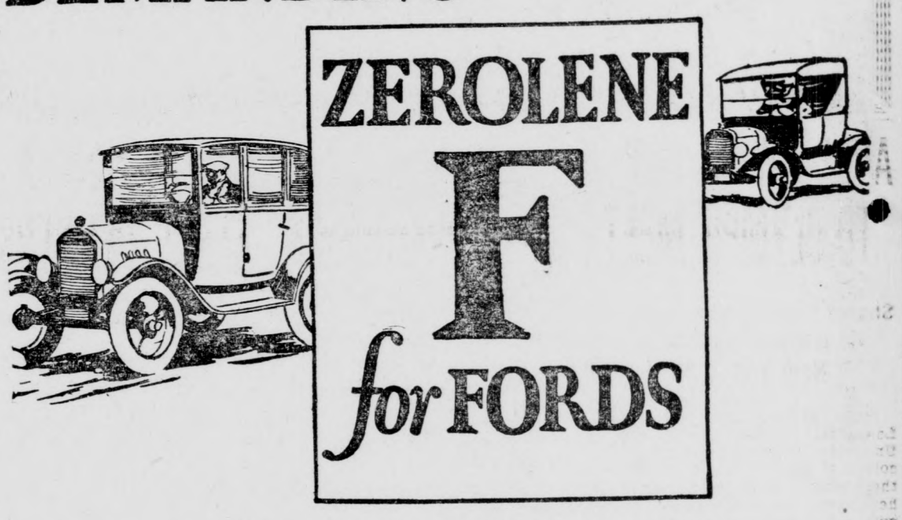
BRAVES BEAT CARDS

Jess Barnes pitched in shutout style after the first inning and the Braves won easily from the Cards, 6 to 2.

NOSE OUT TIGERS

The Athletics scored three runs in the ninth and nosed out the Tigers, 4 to 3.

Why they're DEMANDING



Zerolene "F" for Fords, which the lubricating engineers of this Company developed after six years of research and experiment, was put on the market considerably less than a year ago.

Leads in Sales

Yet today the Mission Tire and Oil Company of Ventura, Calif., writes:

"We find that there is greater demand for Zerolene 'F' for Fords than practically any other lubricating oil on the market. One reason, we believe, is the fact that it gives increased gasoline mileage and reduces operating cost, also eliminates hard starting in the mornings."

Lubricates Better—Costs Less

There are other reasons too—among them the fact that because Zerolene "F" for Fords "feeds those oil-starved bearings"—reaches every point in a Ford where oil is needed—upkeep costs are noticeably reduced, and the working life of the car is longer.

Yet Zerolene "F" for Fords costs not more but less than other special Ford oils on the market.

A Ford is an A-1 transportation investment. Protect your investment by proper lubrication.

COMMODITY NOTES

By Special Correspondents of The Evening News, Copyright, 1924.

TEXTILES

FALL RIVER, Mass., June 11. —Pocasset Manufacturing Company No. 5 resumed full time operations this week with 500 hands, after a shutdown of two weeks. Receipts of cotton here from August to May inclusive were 200,542 bales, a decrease of 130,719 from the previous year. May deliveries amount to only 6,893 bales, a decrease of 14,103 bales from a year ago.

GRAIN

FORT WORTH, June 11.—Thousands of empty grain cars are being assembled at Plainview, Floydada, Lubbock and other points west of here to handle the wheat shipments. Harvesting is in full blast at many points and the yield is better than last year. Farmers are offering $2 and $2.50 a day for unskilled workers.

AUTOMOBILES

DETROIT, June 11. — May sales of Reo cars exceeded factory shipments by a large number and dealers stocks are being swiftly reduced. There is a good demand for motor buses. Between 12,000 and 13,000 Buick cars were produced in May and the June schedule calls for 15,000.

OIL

SAN FRANCISCO, June 11.—Crude oil price reductions in the east are not expected to be followed in California as the California output is diminishing and big reserves are being whittled down. Demand is increasing for gasoline and will cut further into reserves.

STEEL

ST. LOUIS, June 11.—Iron and Steel mills, foundries and machine shops are working on reduced schedule as uncertainty of demand has caused cautious buying of both raw materials and finished goods.

COTTON

ATLANTA, June 11.—The cotton crop of this state is being cultivated more intensively than ever. Shipments of calcium arsenate to fight weevil are nearly twice as heavy as in 1923. The Northern part of the Southeastern belt has suffered from cold nights and the southern part from labor shortage.

SHOES

PHILADELPHIA, June 11.—Manufacturers of shoes here report that sales are not sufficient for capacity operations and costs have risen in consequence of limited reduction.

COAL

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 11. The demand for anthracite now is such that most of the mines in the field are able to run at or near capacity. This condition is expected by many experts to continue throughout the summer.

DRY GOODS

KANSAS CITY, June 11.—Fall dry goods bookings in this territory have been most unsatisfactory. This fact coupled with the high price of cotton is having a deterrent effect on textile production. Floor coverings and house furnishings are still in good demand.

WOOL

PENDLETON, Ore., June 11.—In the last week for Oregon wool have ranged from 33¾ to 38½ cents. About 160,000 pounds have been sold but a large amount is being held for better prices.

BUSINESS WORLD

By J. C. ROYLE
Special Correspondent of The Evening News, Copyright, 1924

NEW YORK, June 11. — Business started the week today with a general feeling of relief over the adjournment of Congress. The opinion has been vigorously voiced for weeks that the uncertainty which possible congressional action entailed has been acting as a check on commerce and industry, and that adjournment would be followed by an immediate quickening of the business pace.

The satisfaction expressed by business men, irrespective of party could not be said to extend to the results of the legislative session just ended. Few interests could be found thoroughly satisfied with the results of the deliberations at the capitol. The stimulus to industry, it is felt, will consist rather in the fact that certain measures were not acted upon favorably, "for government interference" is a bugbear always ready to rise at a moment's notice before the eyes of business men.

Perhaps the greatest disappointment over the results attained by the congressional session is to be found among the farmers, since all pending farm relief measures failed of passage. Even that, however, was less felt than would have been the case earlier in the year, for agriculturists now are approaching harvest and the period of the year when the money for their products comes flowing in.

Theoretically every business man wants to help the farmer; that is, he wants the farmer prosperous enough to buy freely of manufactured products. Nevertheless, the opposition to some of the farm relief measures was intense in some business circles and what displeased the farmers was music to the ears of this opposition.

Merchants and manufacturers feel that the period of the year is now approaching in which the farmer has ready cash, and that he is bound to spend it, whereas the hope of relief legislation acted as a check on buying in the rural districts as long as it was an immediate possibility.

Railroads are rejoicing over the fact that their affairs have not been subjected to additional regulation and feel free to make the most of their busiest period of the revenue producing year.

With congress out of the way, the conventions of the two great political parties are not expected to exercise any great amount of stimulation or depression on business. Irrespective of who is nominated or what planks are written into the platforms, merchants and manufacturers feel that at least they have until late in the fall to "make hay."

Delegations of manufacturers will attend both conventions to urge on the platform makers the program prepared and endorsed by the National Association of Manufacturers in this city recently. This program favors reduction of taxes and the limiting of taxing power, endorses the budget system and demands preservation of the privacy of the affairs of taxpayers and of trade secrets of business concerns.

Members of the manufacturers' association of both parties have made it plain that they do not want a new tariff law, although many individual lines of manufacture are urgent for revision upward or downward.

Many of the delegates to Cleveland are business men, and some of them expressed today more interest in meeting representative leaders from other sections and obtaining their views of the trade outlook than in purely political problems.

ATLANTA, June 11.—Six of Atlanta's largest department stores analyzing business for the six months of the year declared today their sales had exceeded those for 1923, and the prospects for the remainder of the year were, "conservatively speaking," optimistic. One store has moved into a new $1,500,000 building, and three others have leased additional floor space to care for expanding business. Jobbing houses are beginning to feel the influence of freer money resulting from splendid prices to growers of fruit and vegetables. A survey of the counties hardest hit by boll weevil shows that the farmers are in a much better financial condition as a result of diversified crops.

INVESTMENTS

By GEORGE T. HUGHES
Special Correspondent of The Evening News, Copyright, 1924.

While the oil industry is divided into four great branches, production, transportation, refining and marketing, which may be operated separately or in combination, it is the producing end that lures the public and causes enormous losses to speculators and so-called investors. This article, therefore, considers only the popular oil security, stock in oil well companies. Nor do these remarks refer to the great companies whose holdings and resources are so diversified, extensive and widespread geographically that they have virtually all possible stability. The public puts little of its oil money into these stable companies; it prefers the long chance offered by the inefficient operator or the hopeless chance offered by the dishonset promoter.

Of every five wells located by honest, capable oil geologists, only one produces oil. Of every 300 wells located by honest incompetents and by dishonest promoters, only one produces oil. These figures are from a nationally-known oil geologist. They are dependable.

Suppose the company owns land or leases in a field that is known to contain oil. Boundaries of oil deposits are not easily defined and a lease, apparently favorably located, may miss oil entirely. This is so well known that experienced companies frequently "checkerboard" their leases; that is, the company does not lease one enormous tract all together, but leases smaller, scattered tracts at intervals, somewhat as the black squares appear on a checker board.

But suppose the producing company is honestly promoted, drills its wells—probably 2,000 to 3,200 feet or deeper and at a cost of $8 to $10 a foot—and strikes oil. Gushers are not always huge money makers, for it is expensive to harness them, and to provide storage and transportation. It is not always practicable to obtain immediate storage or transportation. It is expensive to build pipe lines and refineries.

But grant that the producing company has successfully struck oil and obtained an adequate outlet at a fair price for its production. Say, further, that the field has settled down from the first burst of heavy production to a steady flow. Still there are uncertainties. Every company in the field is drawing oil from the same supply. Prices of crude oil or other conditions may make it desirable for a company to suspend production. But if other companies keep on producing, the company that suspends will find its share of the oil wholly or partly taken by the other producers when it resumes operations. Oil deposits aren't blocked out, as are coal and mineral deposits, which the land owner or lease holder may go and get as it suits his convenience. The oil producer must get his share while it is there to get; otherwise the other producers who are drawing from the same pool will take it all.

The life of a producing pool is uncertain. When the pool is exhausted there is nothing left for the stockholders to sell to reimburse them for their "investment." Oil and mining are totally different from industrial and utility investments. With every barrel of oil or tub of ore drawn to the surface the capital of the enterprise is depleted just to that extent. There is just that much less oil or ore to recover and sell. If there is not enough oil or ore and conditions are not right so that every barrel and every tub will pay back, in addition to a profit, a proportionate share of the money put into the well or mine, then the enterprise is a failure.

FINANCIAL BRIEFS

By Southland News Service

Declaration of dividends on the part of a score of listed corporations was responsible for a feeling of confidence on the part of buyers who saw nohing yesterday in the Republican convention keynote speech that was the least alarming.

The Chicago Northwestern's 2 per cent dividend and the reported Southern Pacific-El Paso Southwestern merger made things interesting for the rails traders.

Sensational losses are revealed in the government's June crop report for Kansas. Smith county shows a drop of 38 points in condition, as compared with the state report five weeks ago.

A 700,000,000-bushel wheat crop for this country leaves a very small amount for export, the E. F. Hutton wire reports, and much higher prices are in sight for the coming year.

Among dividends announced was $1.50 on Western Pacific preferred, Elliott Fisher quarterly $1 on common and $1.75 on preferred, payable July 16, stock of record June 16; Gulf Oil quarterly, 37½c; Western Union regular quarterly, payable July 15, stock of record June 25, and the British American Oil regular quarterly July 2, of record June 21.

NEW YORK CLOSING

H. J. DUIZEND
For International News Service

NEW YORK, June 11.—Save for recurrent periods of profit-taking, principally in the late trading, the stock market was strong and buoyant today. Rails were the first to point the way to higher price levels, but even the oil stocks exhiibted a firmer trend.

Gains of a point or more were recorded in a large number of active railroad stocks, including Missouri Pacific preferred, Frisco preferred, Southern railway, New York Central and Rock Island.

Buying extended to the equipment, steel and oil stocks in larger volume than in any previous session for a week.

Cosden Oil, which was sold heavily last week, went to 27½, up 3 points from yesterday's low and 3 points from the low of last Saturday.

Gulf States sold in the upward movement of steel stocks, advancing 2½ points to 68½. Mack truck featured the motor stocks.

The industrial and mercantile stocks led the upward movement in the stock market in the last hour and new high prices were registered for many stocks in these groups. U. S. Steel added nearly a point at 96⅝, Marland Oil pushed through 31 for a new lead of one full point.

The whole market surged forward in an active upward movement near the close, final prices being near the highest price level of the day.

L. A. EXCHANGE

By H. A. VAN DUSEN
By Southland News Service

LOS ANGELES, June 11.—Oils were the only feature of the Los Angeles stock exchange trading this morning, Julian being active. Preferred opened at $31.75 and active demand moved it up a bit to $31.87½. On the other hand, heavy selling forced common shares from $19 to $18.75. In the face of optimistic reports regarding the financing of Julian being complete.

Los Angeles Investment was restive with few sales noted at $3.55 and $3.60. But two sales were made in mining issues and the market had every appearance of being restive throughout the rest of the Republican convention period.

Industrials were altogether dormant, although some eastern buying of rails through the local brokers was reported.

Grain traders also were a bit bullish here.

CHICAGO WHEAT

By International News Service

CHICAGO, June 11.—The impetus given grains by the bullish government crop report was still in evidence today as all surged to higher levels. Wheat closed 2⅛ to 2½ higher; corn was off ⅜ to ¾ and oats unchanged to ½ up. Profit-taking appeared in late dealings in the corn pit.

Batting Strategy of Cobb Is Game Winner

DETROIT, June 11.—Ty Cobb placed himself second in the Tigers' batting order for this reason:

He noticed that Blue, the lead-off man, got on first with astonishing regularity, but usually was stranded there because Bobby Jones wasn't much in the way of an advancer. So Cobb moved himself from third to second, where Jones failed and that, with Manush and Heilman following him, Blue would do some real run scoring.

The shift has worked out splendidly, for Cobb, with his .450 average, and Heilman, with a mark almost as high, have been driving Blue around the bases with great frequency.

It was said that Cobb's strategic shift has won at least three games so far for the Tigers which otherwise would have been lost if Jones had been following Blue.

REPORT ON WATER SYSTEM TONIGHT

Planning Commission Calls Meeting for Residents On Verdugo Road

Reports by Peter Diederich, superintendent of the city light and water department, and B. F. Dupuy, city engineer, will be made before the meeting of the City Planning commission scheduled for 7:30 o'clock tonight to consider matters pertaining to the improvement of the Verdugo road district between the south line of the Haddock-Nibley company property and the south line of the Sparr Heights tract.

The chief topic of discussion will be the installation of a water distributing system for the entire section east of Verdugo road, which has been urgently needed for some time. Mr. Diederich has prepared a report that will give a comprehensive outline of this work. Mr. Dupuy's report will cover the proposed foothill drive east of Verdugo road and running parallel with it.

The meeting has been called as a result of a petition signed by a large number of the property owners in the district asking for a report on a plan for a water system and the new highway. All residents interested in these improvements are urged by the commission to attend the meeting tonight in order that all preliminary details may be cleared up.

QUESTION—Which was first team to win a pennant, and which was the first to win a world series?

ANSWER—Chicago won the first pennant in the National League, which is the oldest baseball organization. The first world series under regulation rule was won by the New York Nationals.

QUESTION—Three are on the bases and one out. The rule of the game is to run on the third strike if the catcher drops the ball. Next batter strikes out and the catcher drops the ball. He picks it up touches home plate and throws the ball to first and the umpire calls both runners out. That play lost the game to the club against which it was made by one run. At the time of the play there was no protest. Now does that count for a win by the team that made the play? The team against which the decision was made plays win or lose with a smile.

ANSWER—In the first place it is dangerous to play ball with amendments to the rules. If there was a special agreement to run on the third strike then the catcher had a perfect right to make a double play but the experience that followed should teach any club that it is not a good plan to alter rules to suit whims.

QUESTION—Did Adolfo Luque, now with Cincinnati ever pitch in the American Association, and what team?

ANSWER—He pitched for Louisville. His winning percentage was .619, .333 and .846.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

GLENDALE PROPERTY

BUSINESS IS GOOD

Why have we continued to sell all kinds of Glendale Real Estate during the past few months, while the pessimists have been working overtime? Just a few of the many reasons:

We have unlimited faith in the future of Glendale, and talk it.

Dozens of old satisfied customers, who have been dealing practically exclusively through our firm for years, boost to their friends and neighbors, which after all is the best kind of advertising.

To our knowledge not a single, solitary one of our many clients have ever taken a loss of a single penny through the purchase and sale of real estate through our firm. Why? Because we are careful to select the "best in the market" for them.

Buy NOW for bargains, as we predict unusual activities this fall and winter.

A FEW OF OUR BEST:

TO PROTECT BANK

To protect banks against forgery a double camera has been designed to photograph a depositor and his signature at the same instant.

May Tumble

TOM GRIFFITHS, M. P., formerly a Welsh laborer, now fills the post of treasurer of the royal household, a position hitherto occupied by members of the British nobility.

LONDON, June 11.—No less exalted a personage than the courtly Duke of Argyle, known as the "Cock of the North" because of his pompous strut, tripped and fell while trying to strut backward, landing in a seating posture on the throne dais and struggling with the entangling alliances of his long ermine robe. This happened while he was carrying the crown on a cushion to Queen Victoria.

If the "Cock of the North" should tumble thus, what chance has a poor Welsh son of toil?

Tom Griffiths, Labor member of parliament from Pontypool Monmouthshire, and a party whip, is the new treasurer of the royal household, one of the "white slaves" of the king's entourage.

As such, the erstwhile horny-handed toiler, on all state occasions, will don white silk stocking, white kerseymere "small clothes" (tight fitting knee breeches), a gorgeous gold-embroidered coat and gold buckled pumps.

Thus out-glorying Solomon himself, and carrying his long white wand of office, Tom will then precede their majesties, as gracefully as he can, in the following manner:

Three steps backward, a deep bow toward their majesties, a half turn back, three backward steps, a bow, etc., on the level, upstairs and downstairs.

SEEKS TO PROVE SLAYERS' SANITY

University Professors Will Be Called by State In Youths' Trial

By LARRY SMITS,
For International News Service.

CHICAGO, June 11.—University professors who schooled Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb in the law, including Professor Roscoe Pound, dean of the Harvard law school, will be called by the state in its determination to prove the santy of the two youths charged with the murder of Robert Franks, it was announced today.

Leopold took his entrance examination for the Harvard Law school under Professor T. Neil Johnson, two days after the murder, and it was sent to Dean Pound, who will be asked if that examination paper couid have been written by an insane person.

To Quiz Students

Two detectives will leave today for Ann Arbor, Mich., where Leopold and Loeb were students at the University of Michigan until the Chirstmas holiday last year, to take depositions from their fellow students there toward the same end—that of determining their sanity.

They will seek also to trace the typewriter on which Leopold confessed he wrote the letter designed to extort $10,000 from Jacob Franks, millionaire father of the slain boy.

Reports that the state's attorney had definitely decided to push the kidnaping charges to trial first were partly refuted today when State's Attorney Crowe said he had made no such decision.

Unsinkable Ship Only Myth, Says Authority

LONDON, June 11.—No ship has yet been built that can be truthfully described as unsinkable, according to Sir Alan Anderson, noted English shipping authority and director of many shipping companies.

Addressing the assembled delegates to the International Shipping Conference here recently, he characterized the unsinkable ship as a myth, and particularly dangerous myth, by virtue of its inducing a false sense of security.

A modern ship, properly handled, would not sink unless she hit something harder than water," he declared, "but if she charged another ship, or rock, or iceberg, she would

EXPLAINS TRAITS OF HUMMING BIRD

flowering plants and bird life. Five hundred and eight species of birds have been catalogued and 10,000 varieties of flowers, shrubs and herbs. California is the "land of sunshine, flowers and wild birds."

Our valleys blossom with roses and our mountains are crowned with perpetual snow. It is the paradise of the bird-lover as well as the tourist. Birds come here from the frozen Arctic. Birds of the tropics winter here. Birds from the high mountains come down into the warm valleys. There is a constant movement north and south, and a less constant movement vertically from the mountain summits of a colder altitude to the warmer lowland valley areas, and vice-versa.

We have six distinct species of humming birds in California. There is only one variety east of the Mississippi river, the beautiful ruby-throated humming bird (Trochilus colubris). There are ninety-three species north of the Isthmus of Panama and twenty-three genera. The United States, with seventeen species recorded in her list of air fauna of which about half come across the boundary from Mexico, and therefore should hardly be counted in the list of resident species.

Tremendous Muscles

In regard to some of the anatomical characteristics of humming birds we find that they show some striking facts in development. They are marvelously built for endurance. The muscles controling the wings are tremendous, and more powerfully developed than any mammal in proportion to their size. The bill and tongue are peculiarly adapted to the life they lead. Always slender, straight or sickle-like and the tongue circular and divided at the tip. The bill when closed forms a tube. The lower bill fits into the upper. The tongue is extensile and slender, hollow and not barbed like that of the wood pecker. The bifid ends are fringed on the outer margin.

The head of the humming bird is relatively large in proportion to the size of the bird, the eyes are small and bead-like, the body is very frail, but extremely muscular. The shoulder muscles are enormous. They have eight pairs of ribs, while all other birds have six. The vertebrae of the back and neck are large, the number being less than that of any other wild bird.

The feet seem to have degenerated and the toenails are curved and elongated. A humming bird can not stand up on a flat surface. The wings show an excessive development of the primary feathers and an abbreviation of the secondary quills, the latter only six in number. There are ten primary feathers. This is more than any other bird possesses.

Eighty Miles an Hour

"In their manner of flight," says Dr. Gould of Washington, D. C., "they remind one of a piece of machinery acted upon by a powerful spring." Dr. Ridgeway, Curator of ornithology in the Smithsonian institution at Washington, D. C., states "The wing vibration is about eighteen hundred beats to the minute, or nearly thirty strokes the second. This sweep of its wings covers an arc of approximately 180 degrees." Dr. Terry in Science, vol. II. Mo. 34, page 436, states that "They can fly backward with tremendous speed, remain almost motionless in mid-air, fly up or down, dive and dart at the rate of 80 miles an hour under normal conditions and vanish with surprising quickness from view."

In regard to the intelligence of humming birds, Dr. Gould who has watched the activity of these birds more than any other naturalist, refers to the high order of intelligence so nearly approaching to that of reason. They are the most inquisitive and pugnacious of all birds. The males rarely meet during the breeding season without a fierce aerial battle. They usually fight till one or the other split tongues and death results.

Insects as Food

Their food consists almost wholly of minute insects and the nectar of flowers. They perform in the economy of nature the same office as insects in transferring pollen from one flower to another, thus assisting in fertilization. A young humming bird, two days old, was fed on young spiders. R. Wallace goes on to say that insects form the principal food of humming birds.

Dr. Coues, one of America's foremost ornithologists, says that humming birds are very peculiar birds and their study may almost be said to form a particular department of ornithology. In fact, the word "trochilidist" has been coined to designate those who pay special attention to this branch of science and there are few birdmen who, however great their general requirements, can be considered experts in this study.

We may learn many things from these tiny "fairies of the open-air" with their scintillating beauty, their evident enjoyment of their environment and sagacity of instinct.

by getting a receipt for a $100 for a $10 payment. The sale is being held to unload a large number of pianos that were prematurely delivered, prior to the company's forthcoming move to their new building at 118 South Brand boulevard. They must either be sold or stored, the proprietors state, and are offered at prices never before seen in Glendale.

Lieutenant B. M. Spencer, a mechanical engineer and graduate of Brown university, served as a captain during the war and has flown 2000 hours, which is considerably longer than many of the prominent aviators in active army service can say. It was he who in 1921 built the famous fifteen-passenger, 900-horsepower "Friesly-Falcon" biplane, said to be the largest ship in the world, which was purchased by the Chinese government.

In 1912 Lieutenant Spencer built a successful monoplane and in all has constructed four ships. Shortly after the war he "barnstormed" all over the northern part of the state, doing some 800 hours of professional flying.

Radio has been his hobby for many years. He is now seeking a method to overcome the difficulty experienced in receiving the direction of east to west. He welcomes questions on intricate phases of radio transmission and receiving and invites visitors to his "studio" at the Glendale Music company.

MEMBERS SALUTE CLUB PRESIDENT

Executive Board Members at Luncheon Praise Work Of Mrs. Campbell

ert White, J. E. Sargent, A. P. Findlay, P. S. McNutt and Miss Eva Daniels.

Luncheon Planned

During the board meeting Mrs. Campbell again announced that on Monday, June 16, she is to entertain all members of the board, chairmen of committees, curators of departments and club editors at luncheon at the Oakmont Country club.

A special feature of the meeting was the announcement that there is a balance of $2500 in the club treasury to carry on with during the summer. This gave rise to many compliments for Mrs. M. E. Plasterer, retiring treasurer, whose wonderful financial ability has been demonstrated during the past two years. On behalf of the club Mrs. Campbell expressed grateful appreciation to Mrs. Plasterer.

Praise was also given Miss Eva Daniels, publicity chairman, for her work that has won recognition all over the Los Angeles district.

Special mention was also made of the wonderful work of Mrs. Montgomery, chairman of ways and means, and Mrs. E. W. W. Hayward, program chairman.

American sport-loving public paid more than $25,000,000 for college football games last season, it is estimated.

trative matters pertaining to club affairs and they will appear in the club year book printed in the fall.

Annual reports were given by Mrs. Alexander Mitchell, courtesy chairman, who stated that 1200 guests have visted the club during the year; by Mrs. Helen MacMullen, chairman of civics; by Mrs. J. D. Camerer, representing Mrs. Parkhurst Cory, chairman of calling, who stated that 146 new members had been visited; by Miss Daniels, publicity chairman; by Mrs. J. B. McClellan, chairman of remembrance; by Mrs. E. W. W. Hayward, chairman of program.

Urges Bond Support

T. W. Preston, chairman of the public library board, was allowed a few minutes to speak to the women in favor of the library bonds.

Later Mrs. Enona Hopkins, talented Glendale harpist, played, and Mrs. Stella Haye Salisbury spoke on "Home Life in Japan."

Mrs. Salisbury lived for three years in the Orient and the club women were interested in hearing her tell of every-day life there.

The annual club luncheon will be held next Tuesday and reservations are being received by Mrs. Barton at the clubhouse.
